SPIRIT OF THE OLD

From the field of stars and stripes she drew her name; one of pride that emerged as evidence of a new spirit in a growing nation.

From the peak of her skyscraping mainmast, filled with wind-blown canvas, to the solid construction of her wooden deck was a distance of 180 feet. Her length was five feet less. Her armament consisted of 38-guns; 24 eighteen-inches on the main deck, 14 twelve-inches on her second deck. Her crew consisted of 309 adventurous men.

Her reputation for speed, resulting from her clipper lines, earned her the nickname of "The Baltimore Racehorse" (later referred to by the French as the Yankee Racehorse). On a day of open winds and calm seas she ran free at 12½ knots. In addition to her sleekness and speed, she was also classified as "an excellent sailer, particularly in heavy weather."

In combat, Constellation was unequaled in her time. The French Frigate "Insurgente" was first to feel her might. During a battle in the West Indies waters in 1799, Constellation defeated and captured the reputed "fastest ship in the French Navy and the world."

In February of the following year, the French Frigate "Vengeance" engaged in combat with Constellation. The Vengeance was wrecked beyond repair; Constellation remained unscathed.

During 1802, pirates operating in waters along the Barbary Coast were defeated on numerous occasions. Following these battles against piracy, Constellation was not called upon to act in her country's behalf for nearly half a century. This time Constellation was dispatched to the Mediterranean Sea to protect our ships from attack by unfriendly vessels.

In 1865, Constellation's fighting days drew to a close, but her sails remained filled as she carried midshipmen learning the ways of the sea.

At the end of World War II, Constellation retired from active service.

A group of patriotic citizens have begun a project to bring the retired, but not forgotten, frigate back to the nation's waterways as a reminder of our country's proud past.

Her spirit was indomitable, and from this spirit the present Constellation draws her motto: "Spirit of the old, Pride of the new."

PRIDE OF THE NEW

The "new" Constellation was born on Navy Day 1961 at the New York Naval Shipyard. She was christened the world's largest warship.

Named for the frigate Constellation who had already indelibly written her name in history, the new "Connie" had a tough reputation to match. Since October 27, 1961, Constellation has steamed more than 200,000 miles and has twice taken up arms in defense of her country's principles.

Connie first cruised as a part of the U.S. Seventh Fleet in early 1963 when she spent more than six months in the Western Pacific on a "show the flag" mission.

After returning home, the Honorable Paul Nitze, Secretary of the Navy, visited the Constellation for the first time. His second visit came in July this year when Connie was on "Yankee station" off Vietnam.

Billy Graham, world famous evangelist, spoke aboard Constellation on 3 May 1964. Two days later, Constellation again headed for the Western Pacific for her second WestPac cruise. The times were more critical at this time and "on station" time in the Gulf of Tonkin reached as many as 57 days.

She won the Navy Unit Commendation Ribbon "for exceptionally meritorious service in support of operations in the Gulf of Tonkin during the period 2-5 August 1964." It was during this period that enemy boats attacked U.S. ships operating in international waters in the Gulf of Tonkin and planes from Connie's decks struck back at the enemy almost immediately.

Nine months passed before Connie sailed into her homeport of San Diego. Even then her stay was short as she headed for Bremerton, Wash., for a major overhaul. By December 1965, Connie was fitted out in her new $19 million finery and was again back in San Diego to begin an intensive training program to prepare a new crew for combat.

Beginning of this WestPac cruise came on 12 May 1966. Operational Readiness Inspection in the Hawaiian area, assuming flagship duties at Yokosuka, and a one day stop for supplies in Subic Bay was the only hesitation for Connie before hitting the line at "Dixie station" on June 15.

After a week at Dixie, where Carrier Air Wing 15 planes flew 703 sorties in support of friendly forces in South Vietnam, Constellation moved to Yankee station where she pounded North Vietnam targets daily from June 22.

DEFENSE OF FREEDOM

After the war, Admiral Reedy participated in the atomic bomb test at Bikini Atoll.

His first flag command came in August 1962 when he assumed command of Carrier Division Twenty. In November 1962, he became Commander, U.S. Naval Support Force Antarctica and later, U.S. Antarctic Projects Officer.

Admiral Reedy became Commander Carrier Division Five on 25 June 1965 and less than a month later also became Commander Task Force Seventy-Seven.

TASK FORCE 77

Rear Admiral David C. Richardson became CTF 77 August 12 while Constellation operated in the Gulf of Tonkin.

Commissioned in June 1936, he served on the battleship Tennessee and the destroyer Downes before beginning flight training in 1939. After receiving his wings in 1940, he was assigned to Fighter Squadron Five aboard Yorktown, Wasp and Saratoga and saw World War II action in both the Atlantic and Pacific theaters. He is credited with shooting down four enemy aircraft.

After the war, he attended the Royal Navy Staff College in London, and the Naval War College, Newport, Rhode Island.

Admiral Richardson has commanded Air Group 13 aboard Princeton, served on the staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, as Executive Officer of the carrier Badoeng Strait, on the Staff of Commander Naval Air Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet, with the Chief of Naval Operations twice, on the Staff of Commander Striking and Support Force, Southern Europe, and as Commanding Officer Cimarron and Hornet.

CAPTAIN'S MESSAGE

The 1966 Western Pacific deployment marks a high spot for CONSTELLATION in naval annals. Following in the tradition of our illustrious predecessor, the frigate CONSTELLATION which dates back to 1797, our ship has performed magnificently and with distinction in the Vietnam War.

The courage and heroism of the pilots has been truly exceptional, in returning daily to attack targets in the most heavily defended area in the world, North Vietnam. Their deeds were made possible by the valiant efforts of the support crews who loaded bombs, repaired airplanes, propelled the ship and performed the myriad of other duties necessary to the functioning of our great ship.

It has been a source of tremendous personal satisfaction to me to participate with 5,000 shipmates who were giving a maximum effort in support of our country and its policies. The superb performance of the entire ship during these difficult months is my reward. To each of you I say in appreciation, "Well done." The Constellation-Carrier Air Wing Fifteen team in 1966 have indeed fulfilled and even added new lustre to our ship's motto: Spirit of the Old, Pride of the New.

EXECUTIVE OFFICER

Commander Charles H. Lindberg became Constellation's Executive Officer on June 7 in Yokosuka, Japan, after having served as the ship's navigator since January 1966.

After entering the Navy in October 1942 in the V1 and V5 programs, Cdr Lindberg began pre-flight training as a Naval Aviation Cadet in 1943. He was commissioned Ensign and designated a Naval Aviator in 1945.

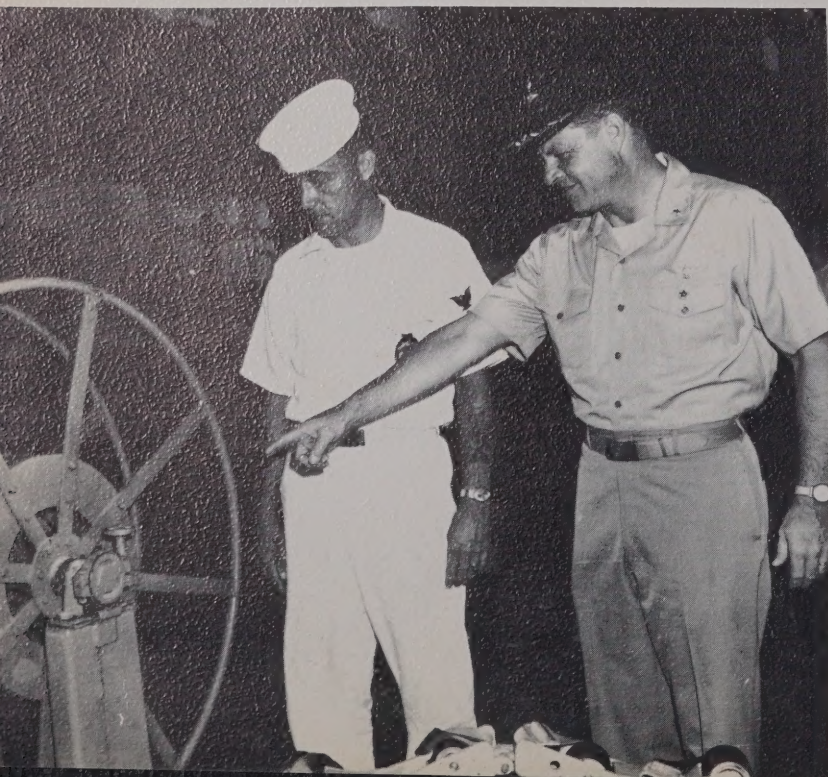

Since that time, he has served at NAS Fort Lauderdale, Fla.; Bombing Squadron 18; NAS Glenview, Ill.; carrier attack squadrons 10A and 95 at the Naval Air Auxiliary Station, Charlestown, R.I.; Composite Squadron 33; Naval Air Testing Center, Patuxent River, Md., as a test pilot; Heavy Attack Squadron (VAH) 8, as an A3D pilot, making tours to the Western Pacific in USS Midway; VAH 123; Air Development Squadron 5 at China Lake, Calif., as Project Director and Executive Officer; and then assumed command of VAH 8 aboard USS Coral Sea.

Commander Lindberg, who has attended the Naval Post Graduate School at Monterey, Calif., came to Constellation after serving on the staff of the Commander Naval Air Force, U.S. Pacific Fleet.

Commander Lindberg has been selected for the rank of Captain.

The Lindberg family, including five children, live in Coronado, Calif.

COMMANDER C. H. LINDBERG

PAST X. O.

Captain Harold Zenner was born in Fond du Lac, Wisconsin, in 1921, the son of Hubert and Alice Zenner. He enlisted in the Navy as an Aviation Cadet in September, 1942, and was commissioned an Ensign and designated a Naval Aviator in August, 1944.

His initial duty during World War II was with VC-3. Since that time he has served with various carrier based squadrons including VF-54 (during the Korean War) and VA-15. Prior to reporting aboard Constellation, Captain Zenner served as Commanding Officer of Attack Squadron 95.

Captain Zenner holds a B.A. in Political Science from Northwestern University and received his M.A. in Political Science from Boston University in June, 1962. He completed the General Line Course of the Naval Post Graduate School in 1954. He is a graduate of both the Command and Staff Course and the Naval Warfare Course at the Naval War College.

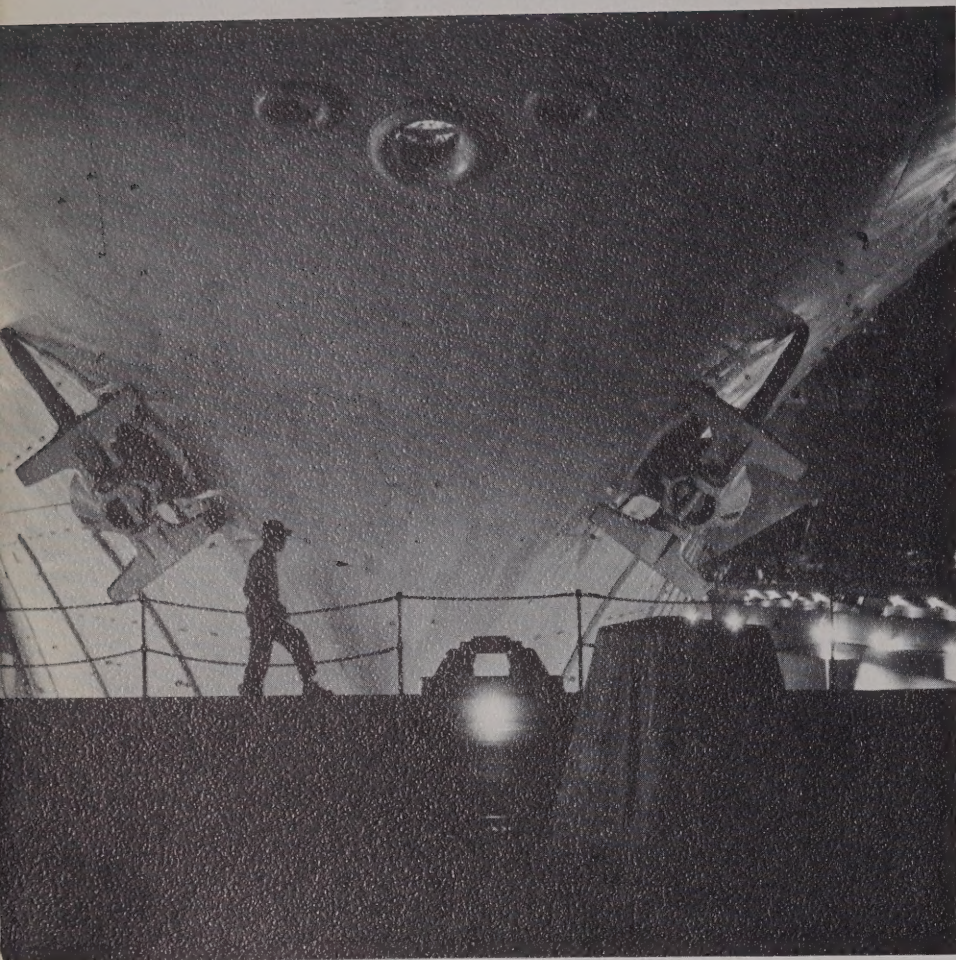

Captain Zenner reported aboard Constellation in August, 1964, as ship's navigator. He assumed the duties of Executive Officer on 7 March 1965.

Captain Zenner was promoted to his present rank on 1 October, 1965.

He is married to the former Jene L. Petz of San Diego, California. The Zenners have six children and the family presently resides in Santa Cruz, Calif.

OVERHAUL

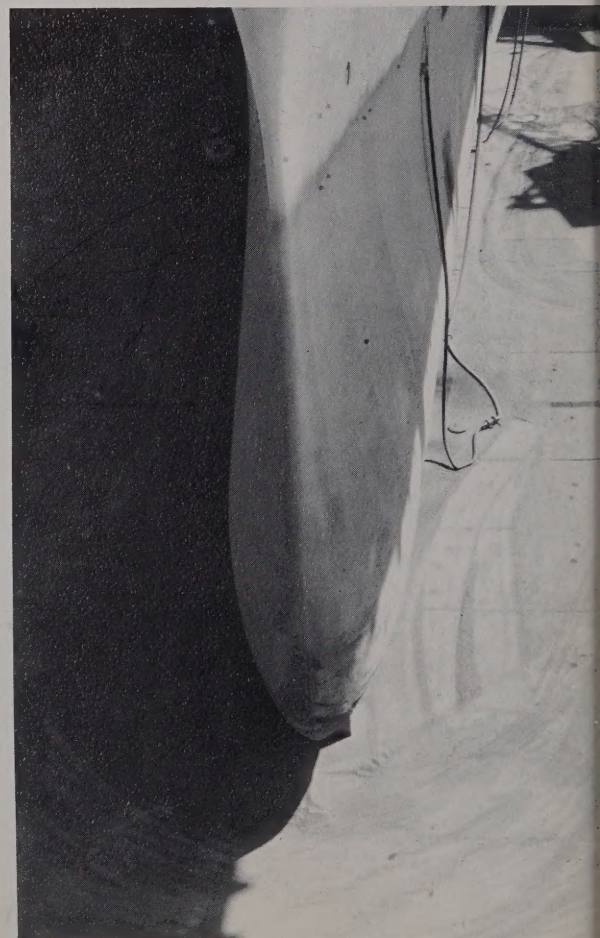

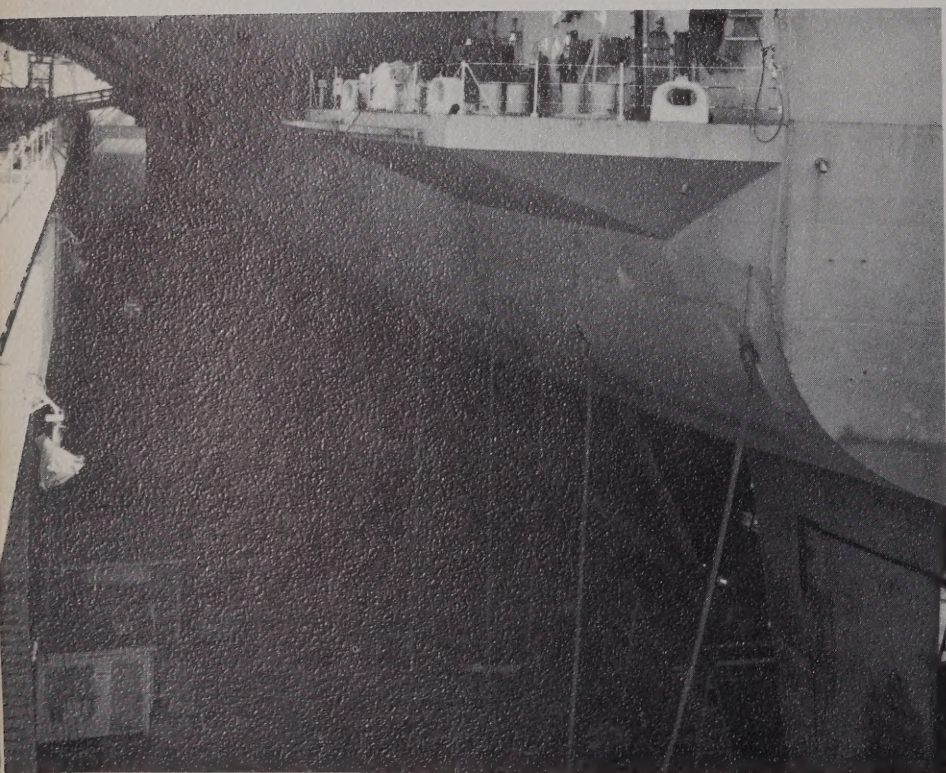

Perhaps Connie's WestPac cruise began in Bremerton, Wash., where eight months and $19 million dollars made her the most modern warship afloat.

Between April and December 1965, she was equipped with several new computerized systems, including the $130,000 Ship's Inertial Navigation System (SINS) and $1,800,000 Integrated Operational Intelligence System (IOIS), and a $790,000 Naval Tactical Data System (NTDS).

For Connie men and their families, it was also a vacation away from the sea. There were weekends in Seattle, in the Olympic Mountains and Mt. Rainer and numerous fishing trips.

Crewmen had a lot of fun in the Northwest, but they never lost sight of the fact that their stay in Bremerton was to build a better ship for the task ahead. This was the objective and that was the outcome.

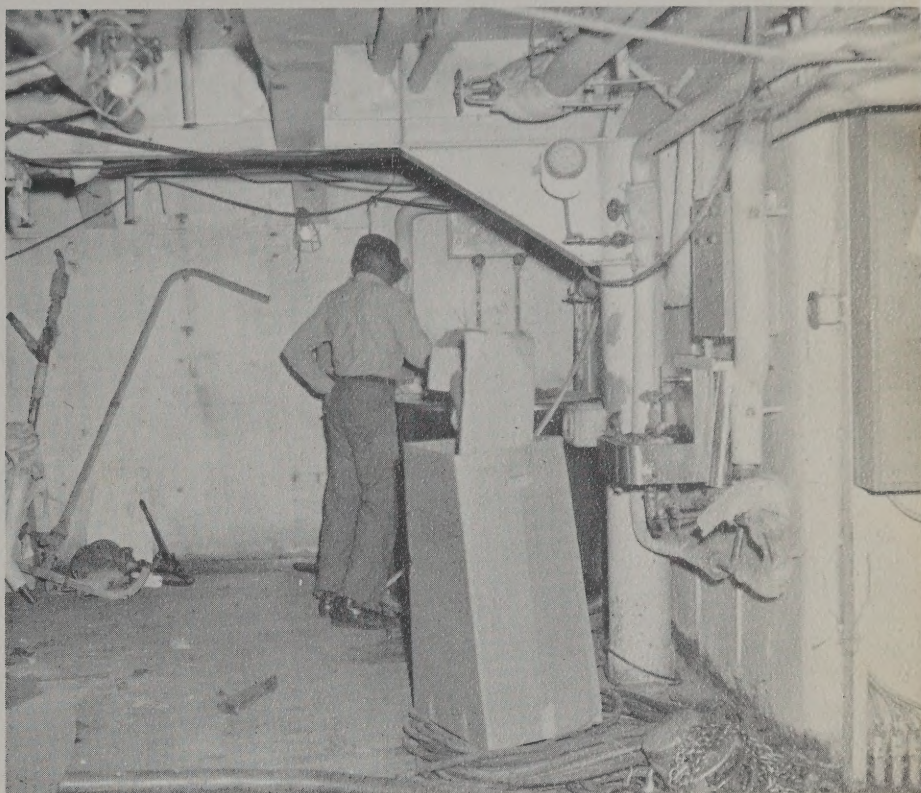

Perhaps the highlight of the yard period was the Constellation Anniversary Ball. Les Brown provided music and the "Beverly Hillbillies'" Donna Douglas was guest star.

ENGINEERING DEPARTMENT

CDR W. E. HUBBARD

We move across the ocean. We have lights, fresh water, cold water, steam, heat, air conditioning, people to repair damage or fight fires. We have these things thanks to Constellation's Engineering Department.

The largest department aboard Constellation, Engineering has five divisions—A, Auxiliaries; B, Boilers; E, Electrical; M, Main engines; and R, Repairs.

Headed by the Chief Engineer, the department has responsibilities from stem to stern, from top to bottom.

One of the newest innovations, which may be unique in the Navy, is the Flying Squad, composed of "specialists" of most of Engineering's divisions. BFS—before Flying Squad—when a fire was discovered aboard ship most of ship's company had to man their repair party stations even though they might be in the opposite end of the ship from the fire. Now only a dozen highly trained men respond to Fire Call, erupting from their bunks, chow tables, work spaces when the call "Away the Flying Squad" is heard. Now instead of everyone moving in a semi-mass-confusion from everywhere to everywhere, everyone moves aside and lets the "experts" handle the fire.

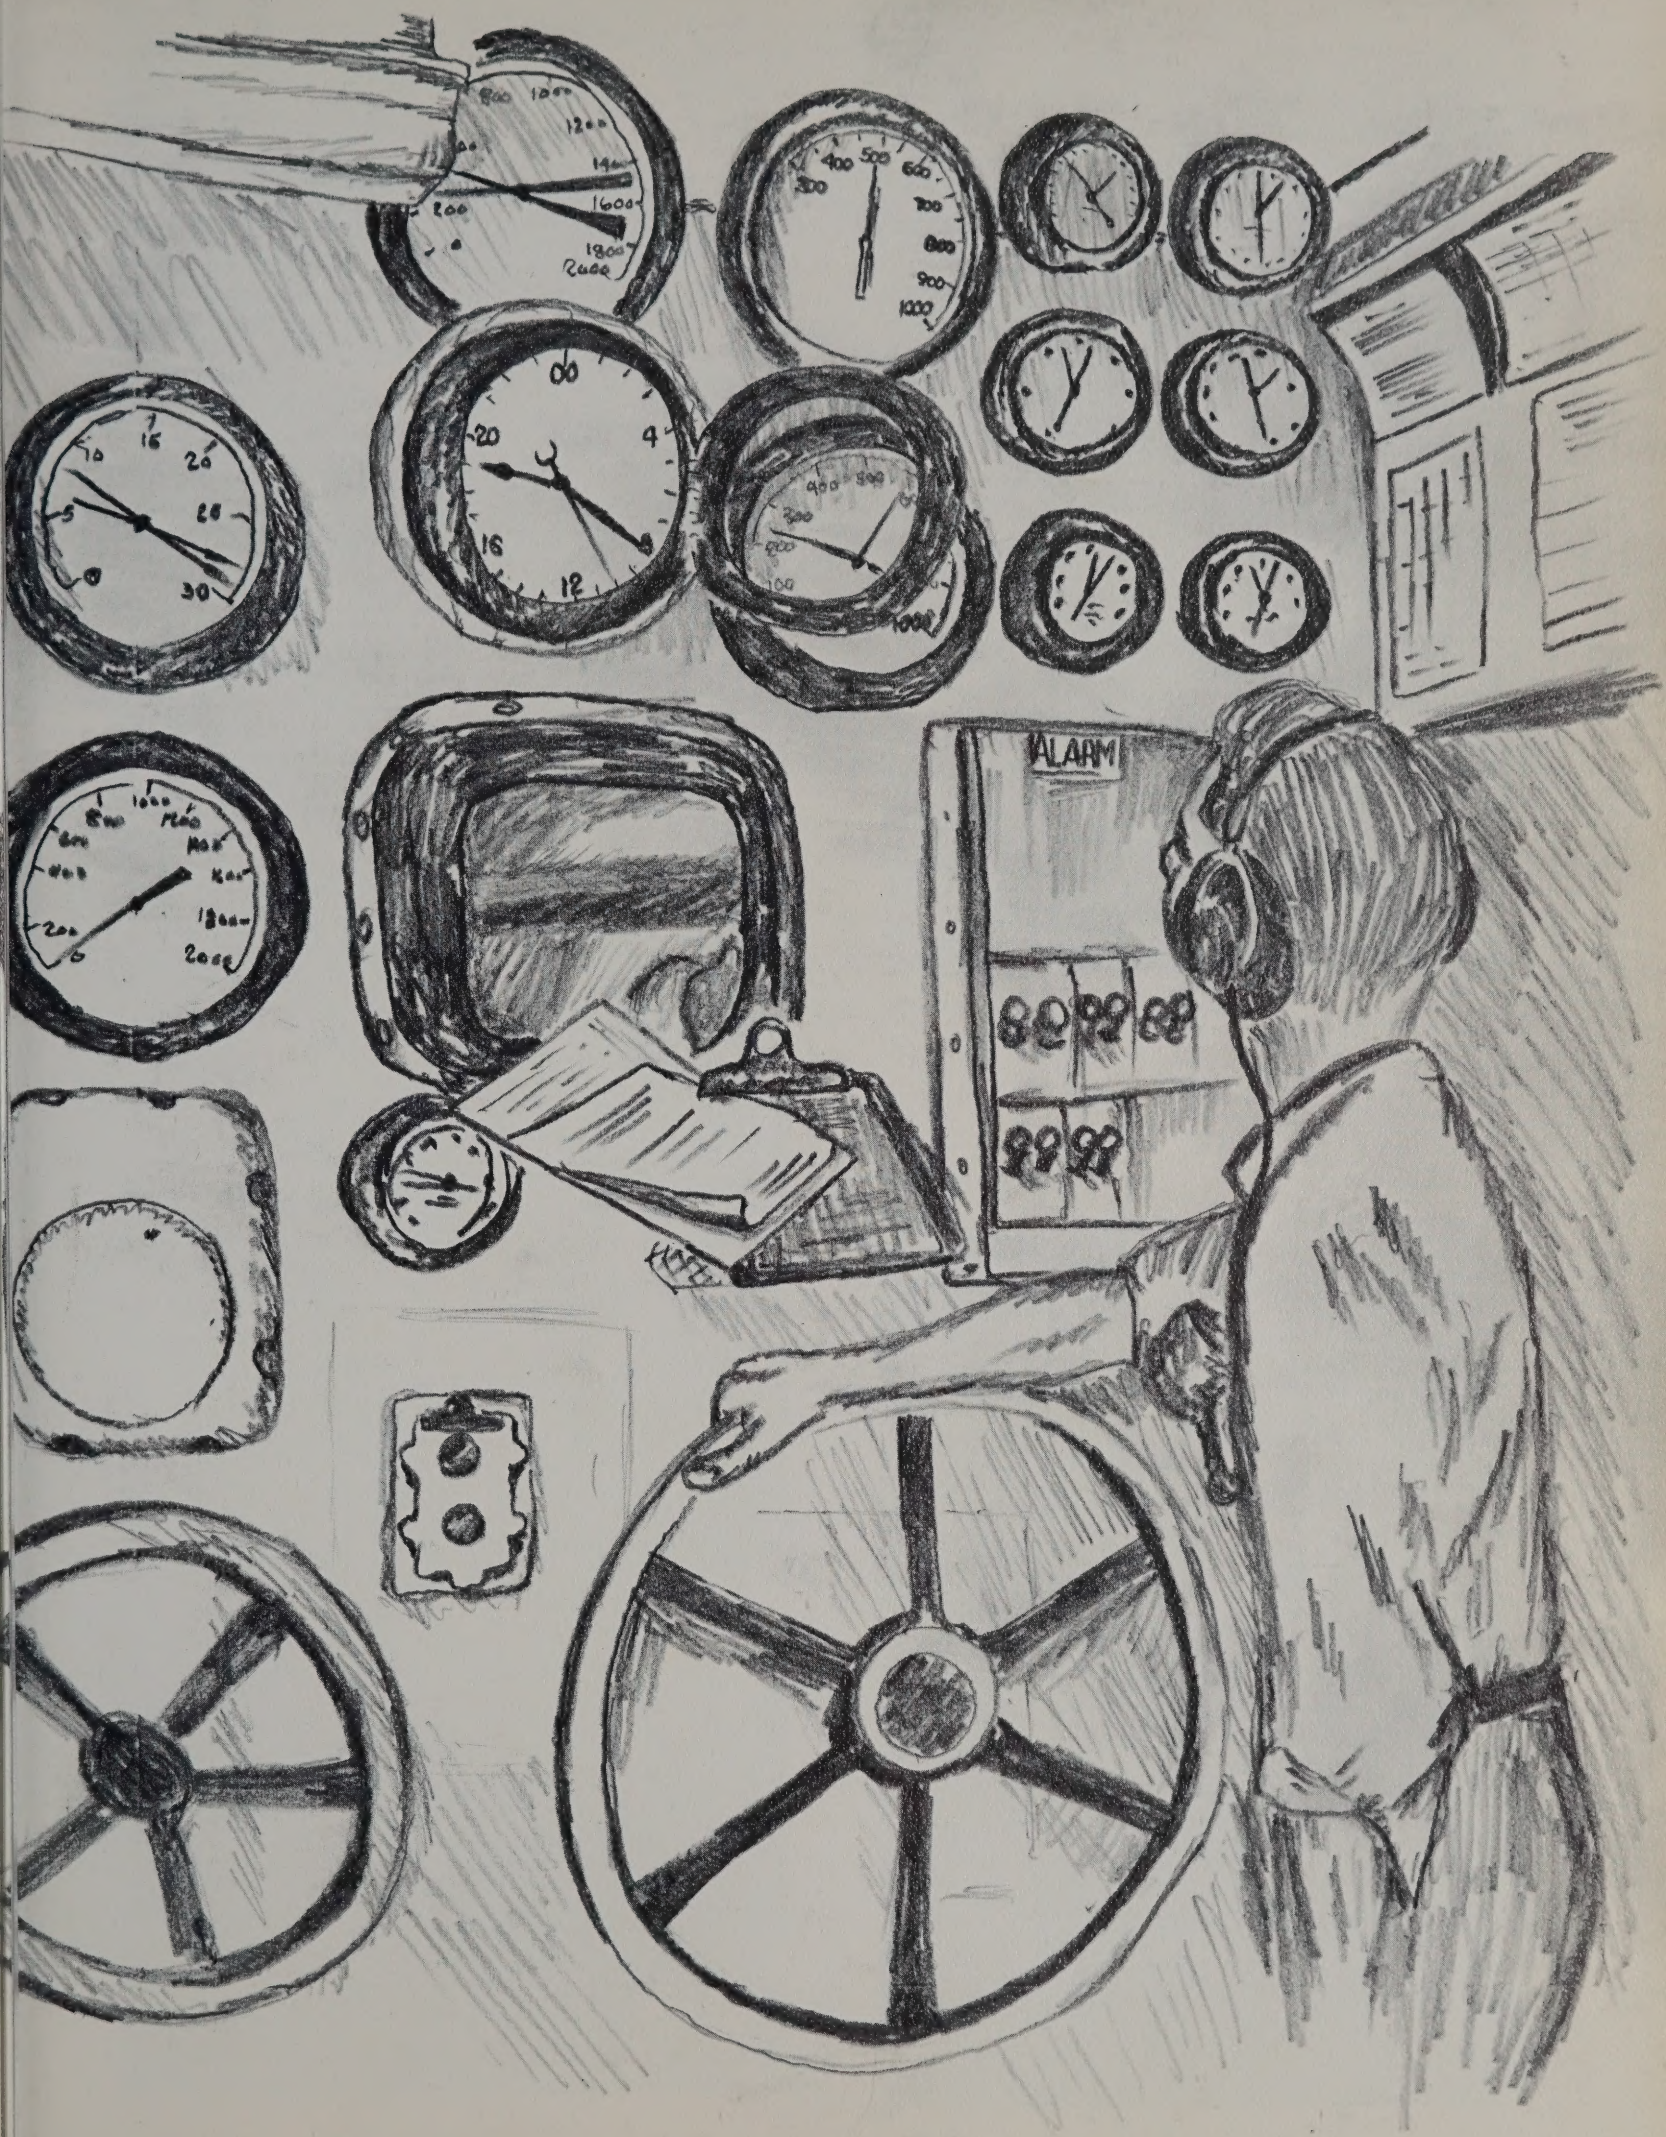

Probably the best known telephone number on the ship is 888 . . . Central Control. No matter what goes awry, the air conditioning in the forward berthing compartment, the ice machine in the CPO Mess, the steam line in the laundry, you dial 888 and one of Engineering Department's specialists heads for the trouble spot to repair the damage or get the machine working properly again.

LT W. V. HAFF, JR., Main Propulsion Assistant

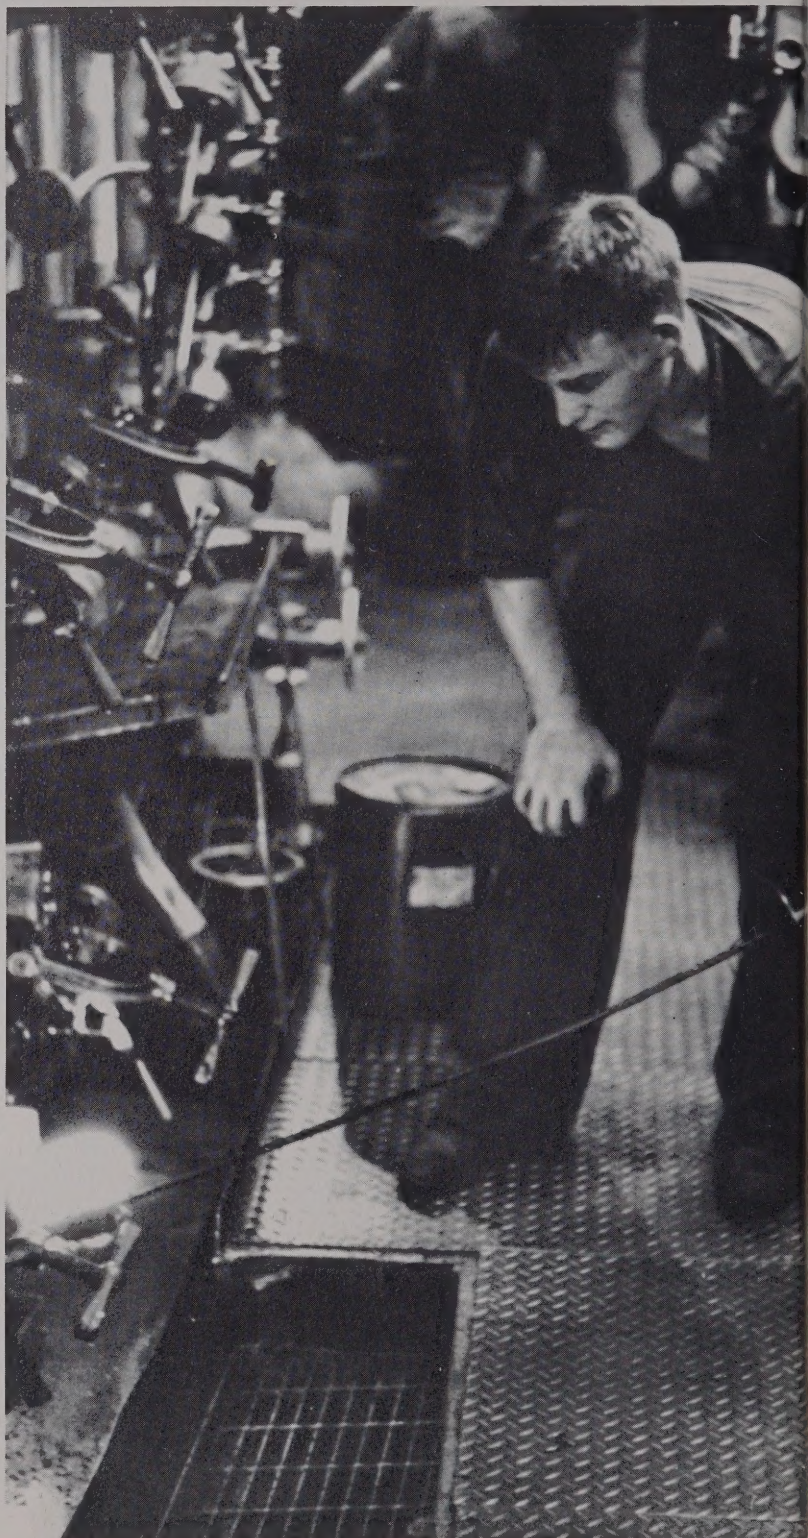

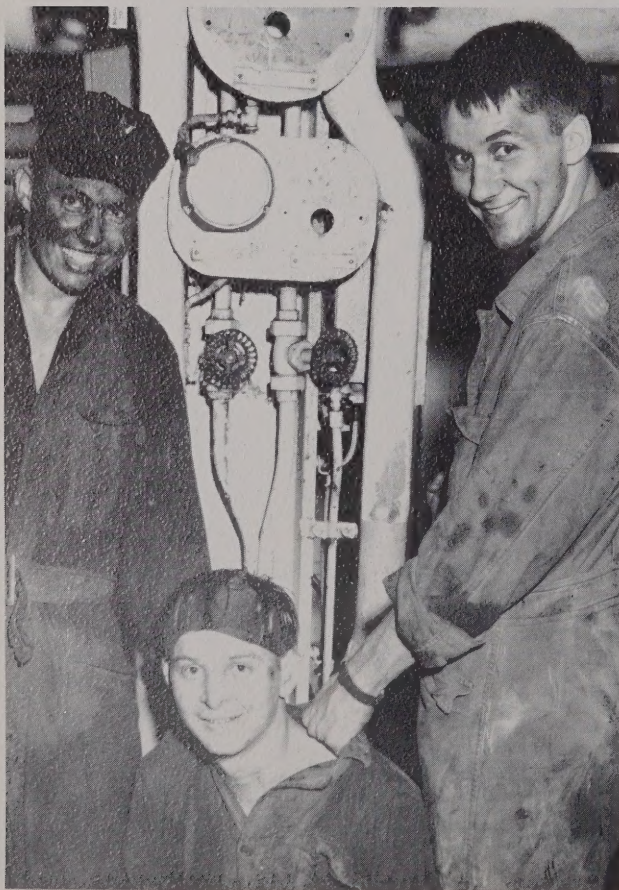

B DIVISION

B Division spaces range from the stacks to the farthest of the ship. B Division is responsible for the eight boilers, twelve fuel oil pumps and other related equipment which produce the 1200 pound steam to turn the engines and fire the cats. The men of B Division also maintain and operate the five evaporators used to produce the 150,000 gallons of fresh water used aboard CONNIE each day.

M DIVISION

"M" Division maintains and operates the four main propulsion engines which give the ship the 280,000 horsepower needed to propel Constellation on her WestPac Mission. The generators that supply the ship's power and the special frequency power are turned by turbines cared for and operated by the men of "M" Division.

A Division is charged with the maintenance and operation of the deck edge elevators, catapult steam and machinery, cooling water for the radar and IOIC equipment, the oxygen and nitrogen manufacturing plants, three emergency diesel generators, fire pumps, the reefers, chill water for drinking, steam water for the galley and laundry and lathes for repair and air conditioning.

E DIVISION

The EM's and IC's generated and distributed an estimated 31,104,000 kilowatt hours of electrical power during the past year. From the "birds" on the mast to the pit sword trunk on the bottom, from the lights on the forecandle to the stern lights on the fantail, "E" division keeps Constellation well lighted.

R DIVISION

The presence of R Division is evident throughout the ship. During the past year, R Division completed over 700 job orders. The division shipfitters perform tasks ranging from unplugging drains, making keys and filling CO2 bottles, to welding, repairing doors and hatches and carpentry and sheet metal work. In preparation for WestPac, R Division installed 750 temporary racks.

DAMAGE CONTROL

LCDR C. B. LEWIS, Damage Control Assistant

Damage Control is a vast organization of over 700 men aboard Constellation. The Damage Control Assistant is responsible to the Engineer Officer for this organization.

The primary element of a Damage Control Organization is the ship's repair parties whose function is to repair battle damage and keep the ship afloat. In addition to repair parties, CONNIE has a "Flying Squad" which is a group of highly trained petty officers who are on standby at all times to isolate, combat, extinguish and remove the effects of fire at sea. Fires in port are the responsibility of the In Port Fire Party. This unit is composed of approximately 30 men from the day's duty section.

Every division aboard ship has a Damage Control Petty Officer for the purpose of maintaining fire-fighting and other damage control equipment for his respective division.

The safety of the ship is dependent upon the Damage Control Organization; therefore, it is essential that every man aboard ship be acquainted with the principles of damage control.

SUPPLY DEPARTMENT

CDR J. R. BOW

LCDR D. O. MILLER

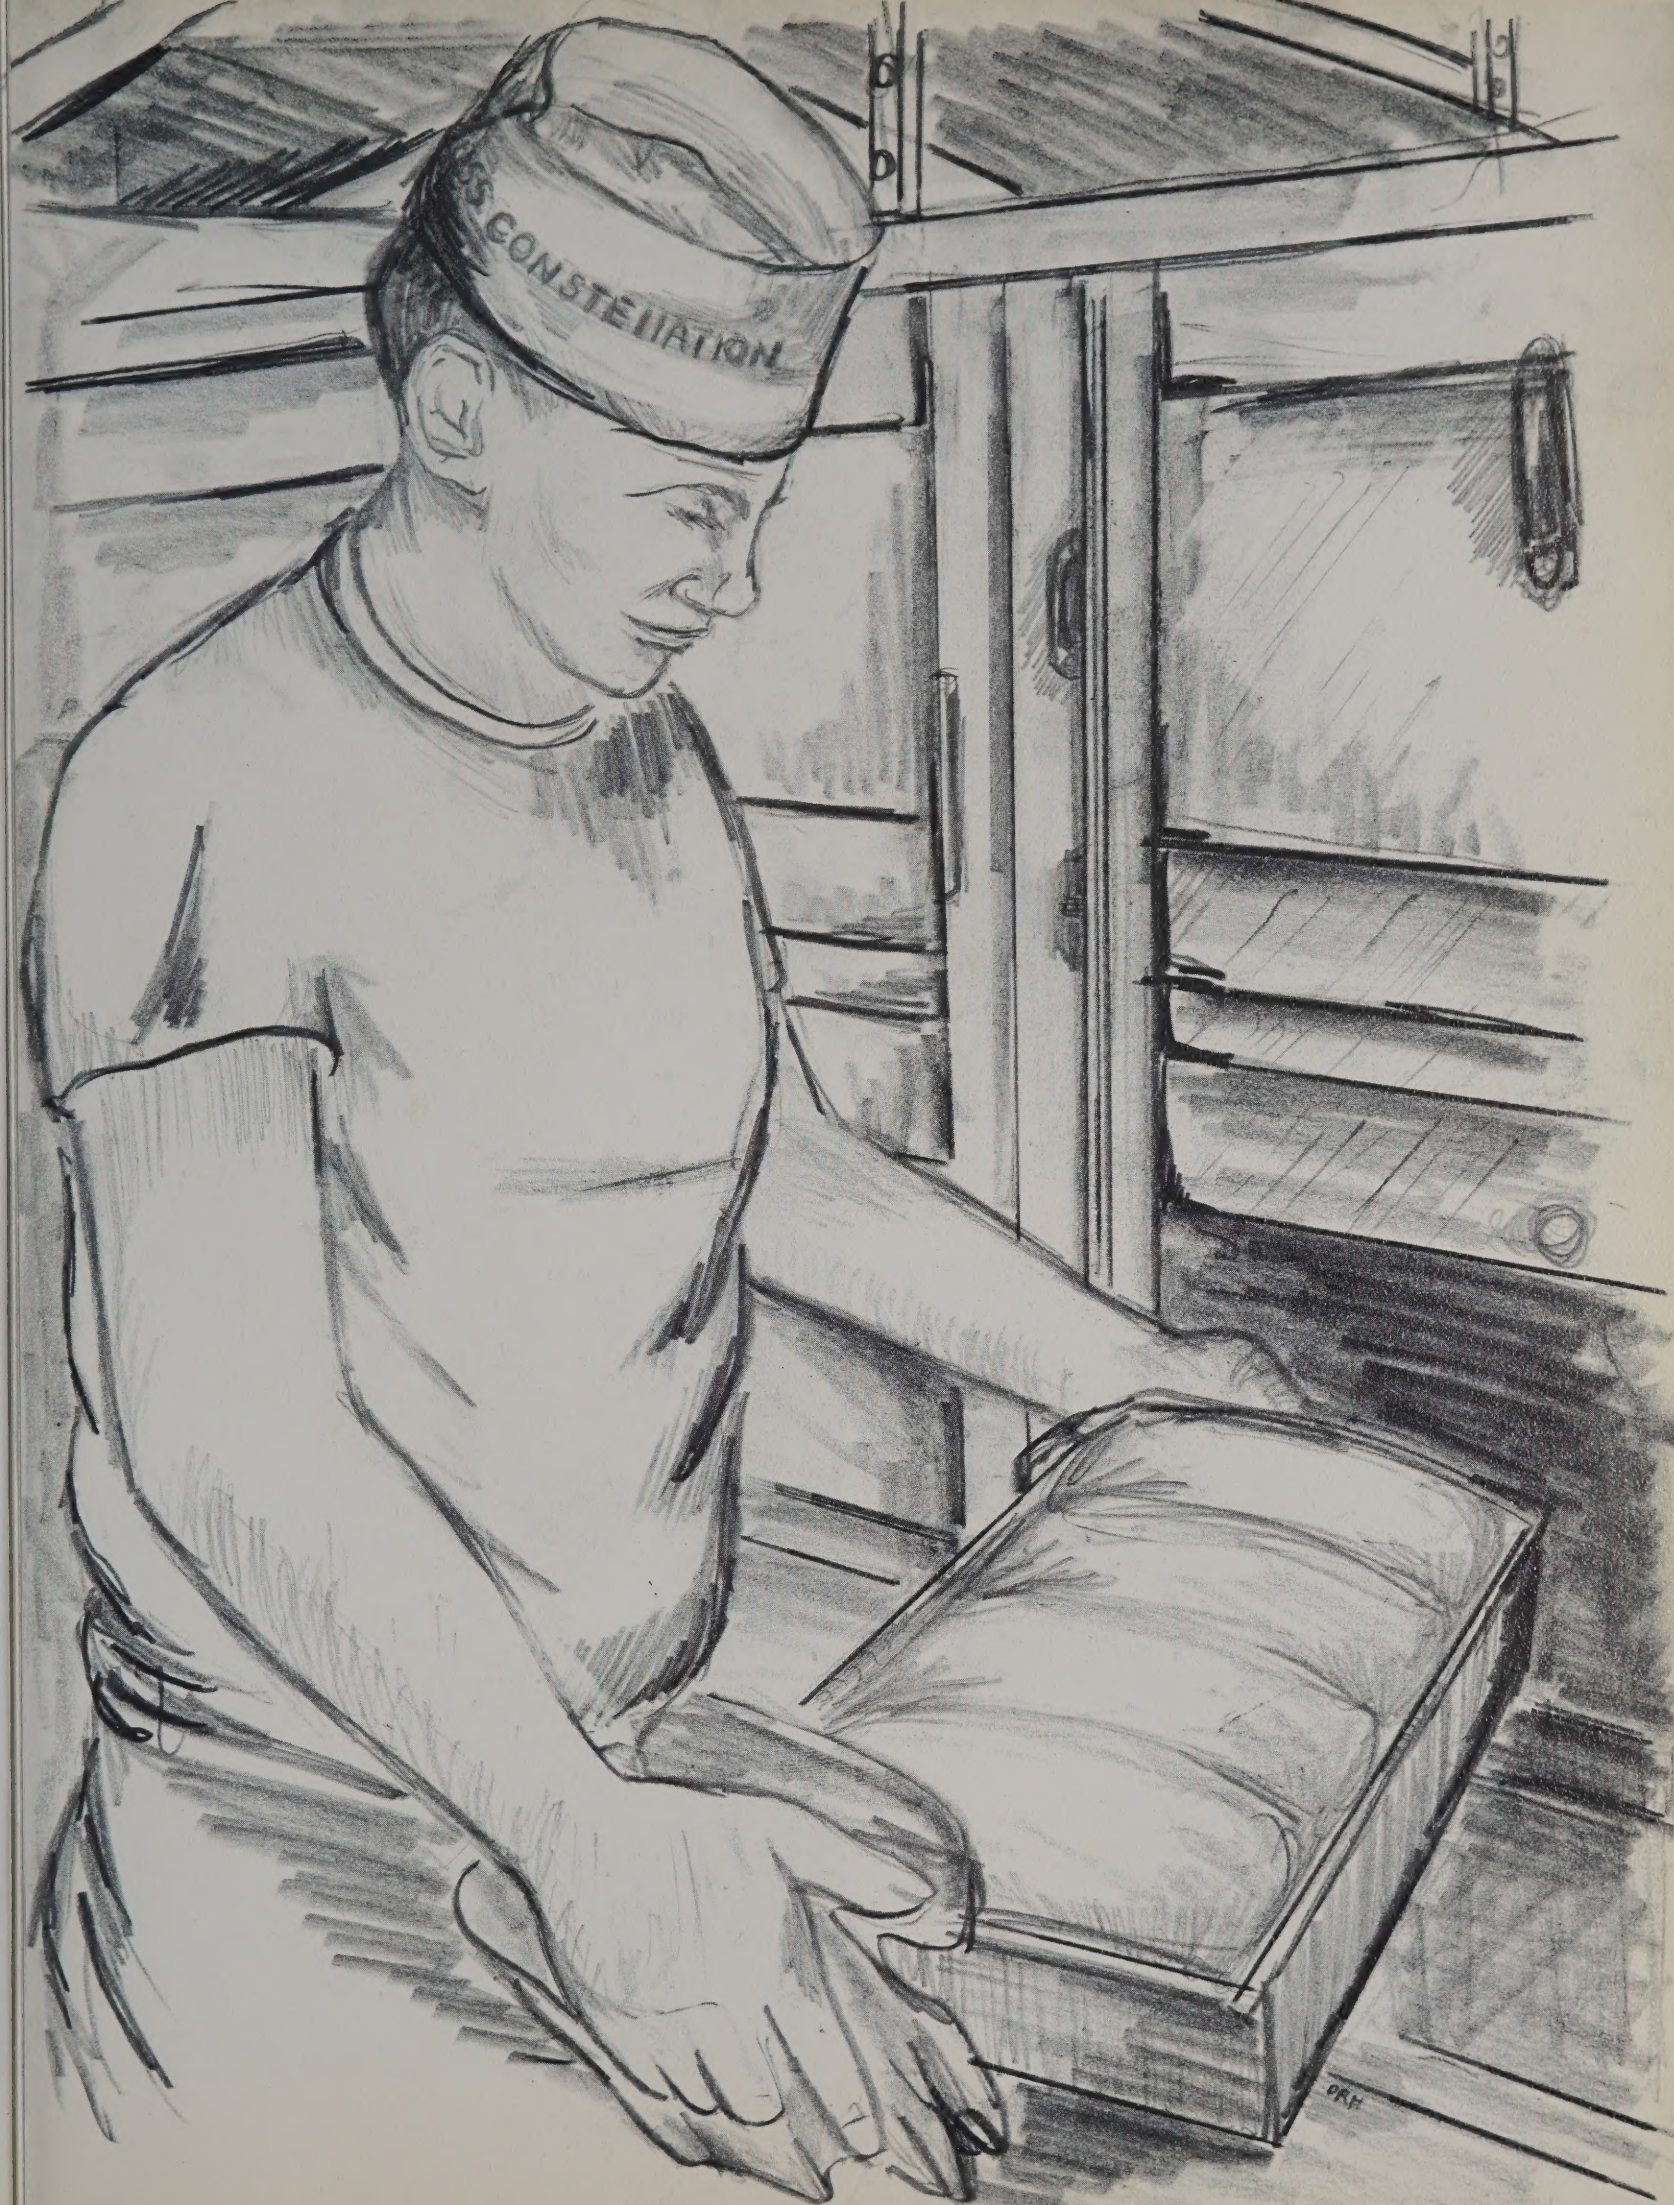

If you wear it, eat it, work with it or on it or in it, or if you read it, write on it, or need it, Constellation's Supply Department has it or will get it for you.

Some 650 personnel—from Storekeepers to Stewards, from barbers to computer operators—take care of the ordering, storing and issuing of all the equipment, supplies, food, clothing, even aircraft engines; look after your personal well being by providing such services as barbers, cobblers, sales people and tailors.

As an example, the Supply Department must order and prepare meals for 5,000 people three times a day . . . 1,308 loaves of bread, 10,150 pounds of vegetables, nearly 5,000 pounds of meat. And they must store it for periods of several weeks—such as the more than 2 million pounds of provisions—until they are ready for use.

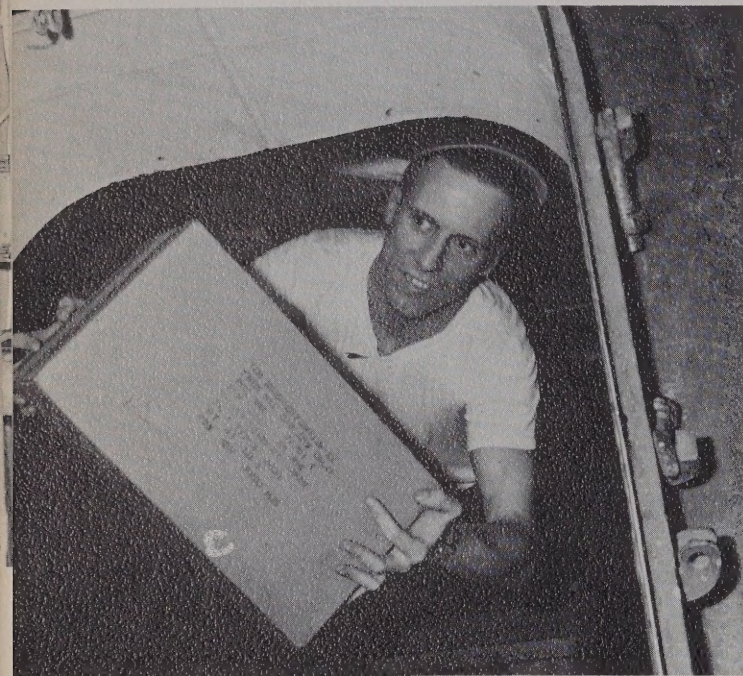

Constellation's 5,000 resident population, like any city of 5,000 needs such items as razor blades, toothpaste, trousers, haircuts, shoes repaired, clothing laundered or dry cleaned or soda fountains for the relaxing hours.

Wherever you are, whatever your job aboard ship, you can bet the Supply Department is close by.

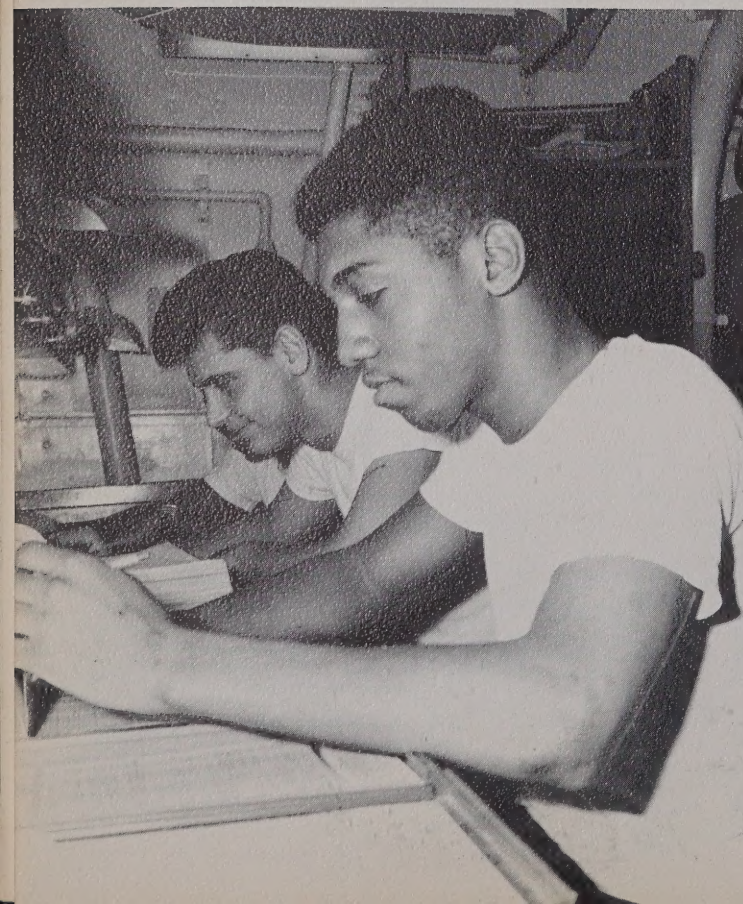

S-1 DIVISION

The Captain's Office screens and routes all official correspondence arriving aboard and leaving the ship, maintains officer records, controls classified correspondence and ship's directives.

The Administrative Office screens and prepares executive correspondence, publishes the POD and coordinates other activities of the Executive Department. The Administrative Assistant supervises the print shop and the post office and serves as X Division Officer.

The Personnel Office maintains enlisted service records, issues ID and liberty cards, assigns crew berthing.

In addition to conducting religious services and instruction, the Chaplain's Office also provides assistance in cases of family emergencies and operates and maintains the crew's lounge and library.

The Legal Office prepares and records Captain's Masts, courts-martial, and other legal proceedings and provides legal assistance to crew members.

The Education and Training Office administers all Navy and USAFI correspondence courses and advancement exams, processes all applications for Navy schools and officer advancement programs and prepares all re-enlistments.

The Public Affairs Office prepares all ship's news publications and all news releases leaving the ship and coordinates preparations for VIP visits.

The Master-at-Arms Force supervises indoctrination of new non-rated personnel and performs various police functions such as traffic control and maintenance of order and discipline.

The Post Office performs all the ship's postal functions and serves as a terminal post office for the entire task force on deployment.

The Print shop produces nearly all the printed material on the ship, using offset lithography.

Special Services operates the hobby shop, athletic gear locker and KCON radio, distributes magazines and newspapers and sponsors in-port tours and recreational events.

DENTAL DEPARTMENT

CDR T. M. ALLESWORTH, JR.

The Dental Department is responsible primarily for the oral health of Constellation's crew, deployed air wing and tenant groups. In addition to the department's primary dental mission, it is utilized as an appendage of the Medical Department in the treatment of mass casualties and manning the battle dressing stations when the ship is at general quarters. No department's mission was made more formidable when Constellation deployed with over 5000 men, one of the largest numbers deployed on a carrier to date.

Constellation's sea-going dental clinic provides a complete range of dental treatment, including operative dentistry, oral surgery, periodontics, endodontics, full and partial dentures and crown and bridge work.

In addition to treating existing dental problems, a program was instituted to prevent further dental disease by giving fluoride treatments and patient instructions in ways to improve their oral health.

The Medical Officer assisted by two Flight Surgeons, one board certified Surgeon, one Medical Service Corps Officer and forty Hospital Corpsmen is responsible for the treatment of the sick and injured personnel aboard Constellation; personnel in all phases of professional duties and ships personnel in emergency first aid procedures.

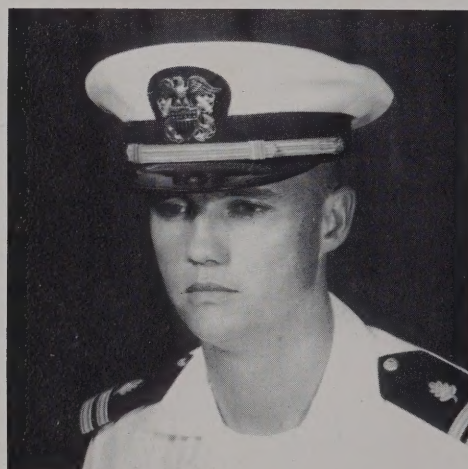

The Medical Officer thru the Medical Supply section must anticipate, in advance, the medical needs of approximately 6000 personnel for a seven month deployment without replenishment.

The Medical Department is equivalent to a completely equipped community hospital. It has two wards and four quiet rooms with a total bed capacity of seventy-eight. Supportive medical facilities consist of an operating room, emergency room, EENT clinic, eye examination room, X-Ray department, physical therapy, pharmacy, and clinical laboratory are all up to date with the most modern equipment.

CONCENTRATION

LCDR. R. P. RALPH

The mission of the Communications Department is to provide secure, rapid and reliable communications both to and from the command. The tasks and responsibilities are, of course, far greater on a large carrier such as Constellation and because of our additional job of serving CTF 77, who in turn directs the carrier phase of the war.

The department is comprised of two divisions: CR for all radio work, and CS for visual signalling. From the men with the flag bags to a CW operator in radio, each man's job is vital to the total effort. The majority of message traffic is transmitted and received by radio, the majority of this via one of the several fleet broadcasts. Over these circuits come everything from operational war news to a message informing a sailor of the birth of a child.

The men in CR division have many distinct tasks. They handle message traffic from the origin to the moment of delivery and all stops between. Since West-Pac traffic is four figures a day, the expeditious treatment of each message is a painstaking and never-ending process.

The task of CS division personnel is somewhat less diversified but no less important. From their home on the signal bridge at the highest point of the ship, go out all tactical messages. These messages are sent to ships in company informing them of changes in course and speed and also passing routine administrative traffic.

Although important at any time, under wartime conditions the stakes increase immeasurably. Each message sent or received is more often than not of vital concern. Thus it is that Constellation Communications can say with justifiable pride: "We serve the best with the best."

OPERATIONS DEPARTMENT

CDR C. N. PIEROZZI

The Operations Department is wide spread and is responsible for the ship's operating schedule, plans, aircraft outside the flight deck area, carrier approach control and search radar, strike coordination, air intelligence, weather service and photographic facilities.

The Operations Department is broken into five divisions as listed below:

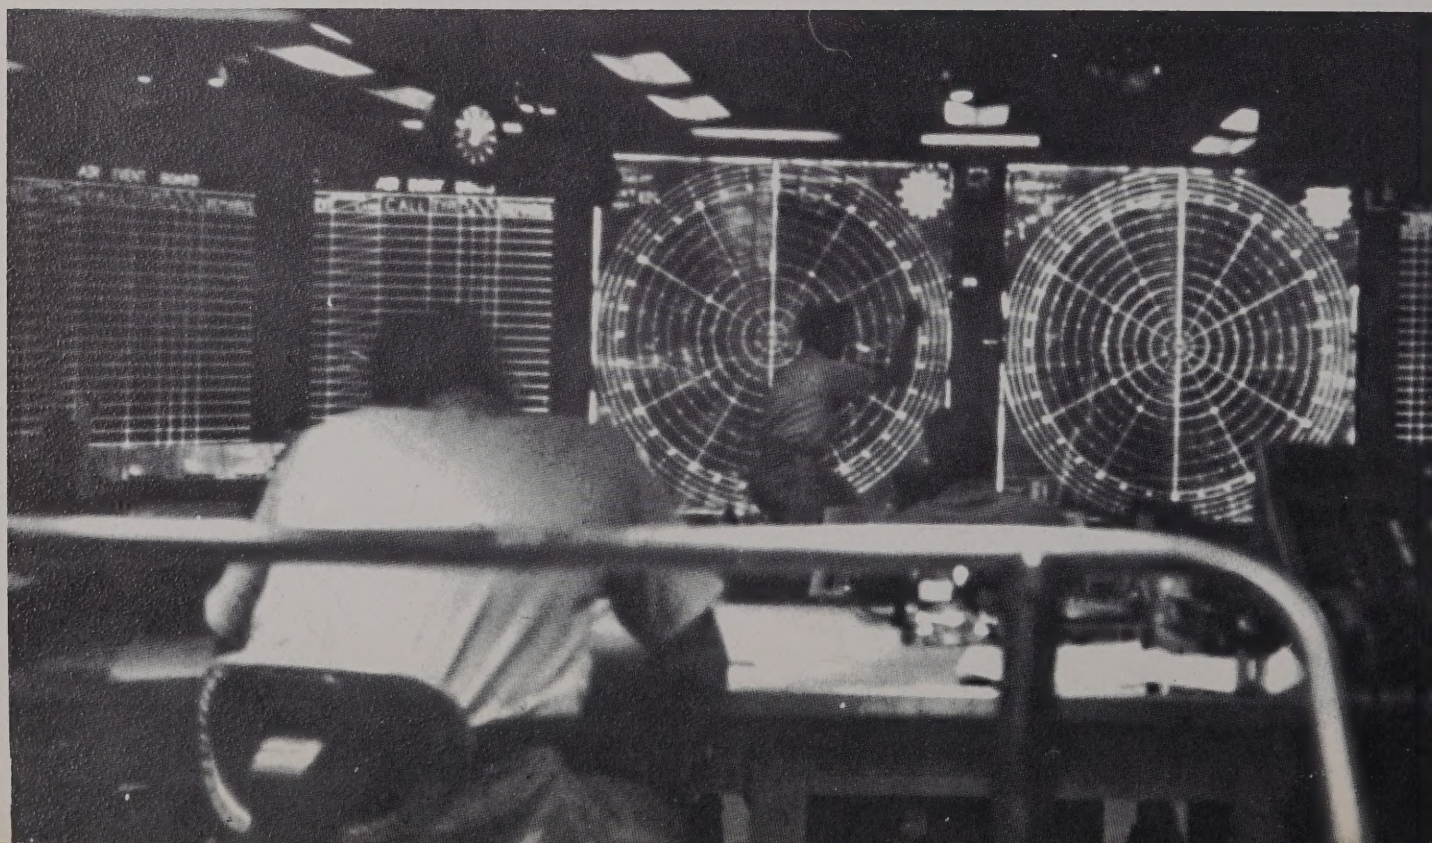

OI—The purpose of OI division is the operation of the surface and tactical air picture and to cooperate with weapons on missile assignment. CONSTELLATION is a Naval Tactical Data System-equipped ship and it is this multi-million dollar installation that is used by OI division to make rapid and concise recommendations to the commanding officer or his representative for action. Electronic Countermeasures and Counter-Countermeasures is also handled by a highly specialized group of OI personnel.

OE—OE Division is one of the most important divisions on the ship. It is the ET's and the DS's that keep all of the electronic equipment on CONSTELLATION operational and in the best shape possible. This is a never-ending, back-breaking job. The EMO and his people are among the most dedicated, least rested individuals on the ship.

OM—Utilizing the most modern equipment in existence including two weather satellites, OM division keeps us informed as to the atmospheric information so necessary in planning for our primary mission of flight operations. CONSTELLATION is the first of the Satellite Weather Tracking ships and as such she has a unique place among navy ships.

OC—OC Division is responsible for safety of flight-carrier controlled approaches and the thankless, never-ending task of flight planning. A branch of OC Division is also responsible for the operation of the mail and passenger service of the "Warchief Airlines" COD aircraft.

OP—OP Division is one of the largest divisions in breadth of responsibilities—including the Integrated Operational Intelligence Center (IOIC) and the photography laboratory, OP incorporates the most modern equipment into one of the most outstanding Intelligence Systems in existence in the military today. The photo lab section of OP Division is a multi-million dollar operation itself, and in addition to its intelligence duties, handles the routine photography of the ship.

Weapons Department with over six hundred men and thirty officers is responsible for spaces from the forecastle to the fantail and the 0-10 level to the eighth deck. Maintenance of the Terrier Missile systems and launchers, stowage and maintenance of ammunition for embarked aircraft, and the handling and maintenance of air-launched missiles and special weapons also come under its control. Other responsibilities include operation of the ship's brig, armory, boats, paint lockers and ground tackle.

The department is organized into ten divisions, including the Marine Detachment. Deck is composed of 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, and 5th divisions with two hundred and fifty men and seven officers headed by the First Lieutenant. It is responsible for the execution of all deck seamanship operations and evolutions including underway replenishments and the care and maintenance of boats, ground tackle and other related equipment.

Fox Division is responsible for the missile firing and missile guidance functions of our Terrier Missile fire control system. 6th Division operates the Terrier Missile launchers and magazines. MARINE DETACHMENT

CAPTAIN H. G. TODD, U. S. M. C.

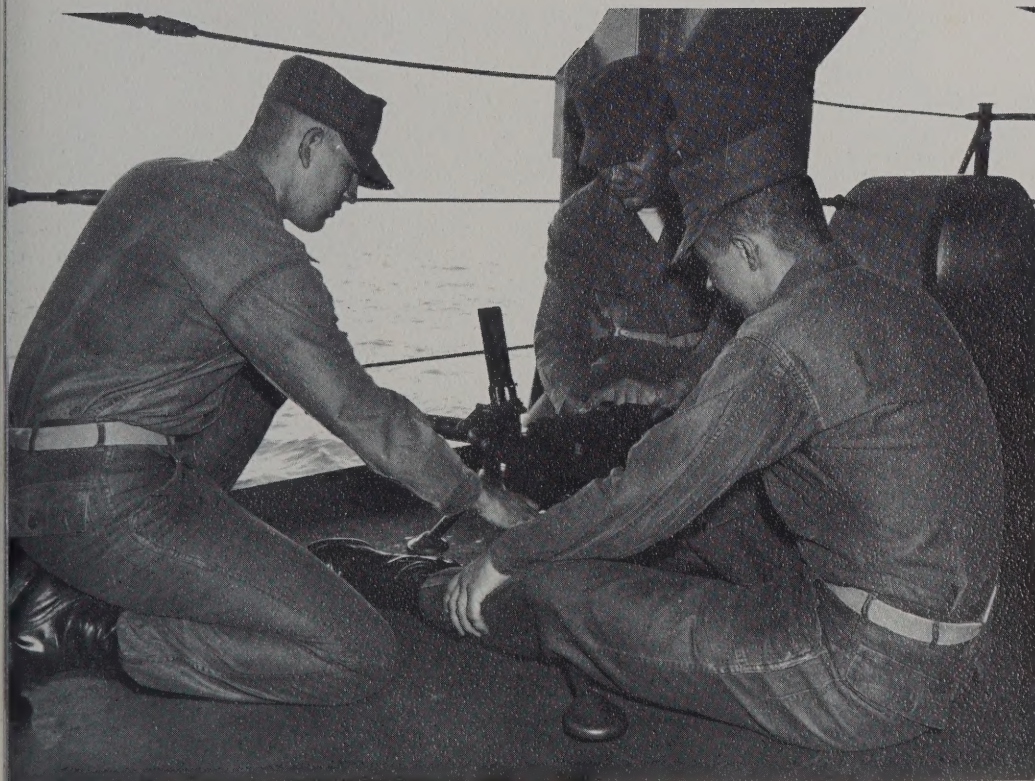

1ST LT. A. J. LAZOS, U. S. M. C.

Since 1775 Marines have served with distinction aboard U. S. Navy Ships. At this time Marines performed a great variety of duties, and they were expected to impart a high military character to the crews. They furnished guards, "particularly near the arms chest and open fires," and provided the Captain with a police force to impress often unruly crews. In battle they served as sharpshooters, comprised boarding parties, formed part of prize crews, and spearheaded landing parties. In short, they were infantry soldiers trained to serve afloat.

In 1966 very little has changed. Constellation Marines still impart a high military character; they furnish guards particularly near to arms chests (except that now these "chests" contain nuclear armament); they provide a police force to contain unruly crew members (in the ship's brig); they serve as sharpshooters when danger of floating mines exist; and they form the nucleus for the ship's landing party. Constellation Marines are still infantry soldiers trained to serve afloat. We are rightfully proud of Constellation Marines.

AIR DEPARTMENT

CDR K. E. ENNEY

The Air Department is a complex organization composed of more than six hundred talented, hard working officers and men. The mission of the Air Department of Constellation is to conduct launching and landing operations including the control of airborne aircraft. In addition, the Air Department provides services and facilities for the care, maintenance, and fueling of aircraft so that the embarked Air Wing Squadrons and Detachments can effectively conduct air operations to fulfill the fighting capabilities of Constellation.

HELICOPTER COMBAT SUPPORT SQUADRON ONE

The Det Delta Angels of Helicopter Combat Support Squadron One (HC-1) consist of 8 officers—all pilots—and 28 men who provide Constellation with round-the-clock helicopter service. Among the 28 men are 10 rescue aircrewmembers, highly trained in every aspect of land and open sea search and rescue. The detachment operates the Kaman UH-2A Seasprite, the Navy's high speed, turbine-powered utility helicopter.

During every Connie launch and recovery, there is an "angel" airborne ready to respond to any emergency that may occur. Det Delta also provides a number of services besides their primary task of search and rescue. Throughout the course of a Westpac deployment, over a thousand personnel are transferred between ships and several tons of mail and cargo are delivered to other Yankee team members. Added to this are radar calibration and photo flights and many long hours of condition watches.

ATTACK CARRIER AIR WING 15

Attack Carrier Air Wing 15 was commissioned September 1, 1943 at Norfolk, Virginia. Lt. Cmdr. David McCampbell, who later became the Navy's leading Ace in WW II with over 30 kills, was the first Air Wing Commander. McCampbell took the Air Wing aboard USS Essex in May 1944 from which it operated in the Pacific Theatre until November 1944, destroying over 700 enemy aircraft. For its participation in numerous strikes it was awarded the Presidential Unit Citation, and from that time on has been known as "Fabulous Fifteen."

The Air Wing was decommissioned for a short time following WW II, to be reformed, then decommissioned a second time in 1949. After the outbreak of the Korean conflict, Air Wing 15 was formed for the third time and during the conflict flew over 12,000 sorties during two combat tours. The Air Wing received the Korean Presidential Unit Citation while operating from the USS Antietam. It also operated from the USS Princeton.

The Air Wing was converted to reserve status after the Korean conflict, but was reactivated in 1956. It served in the Western Pacific aboard USS Hancock in 1958, and 1959-1960. During 1958 it became the first all-jet Air Wing in the U. S. Navy.

Since 1960 Air Wing 15 has operated with the U.S. Seventh Fleet on four separate occasions. On February 7, 1965 Air Wing 15 planes began combat operations against North Vietnam, flying from USS Coral Sea. During 1965 the Air Wing set a record of more than 10,000 combat sorties during a single cruise.

Air Wing 15 sailed with USS Constellation in May 1966 to begin another combat cruise as a member of the Seventh Fleet.

COMMANDER ATTACK CARRIER AIR WING 15

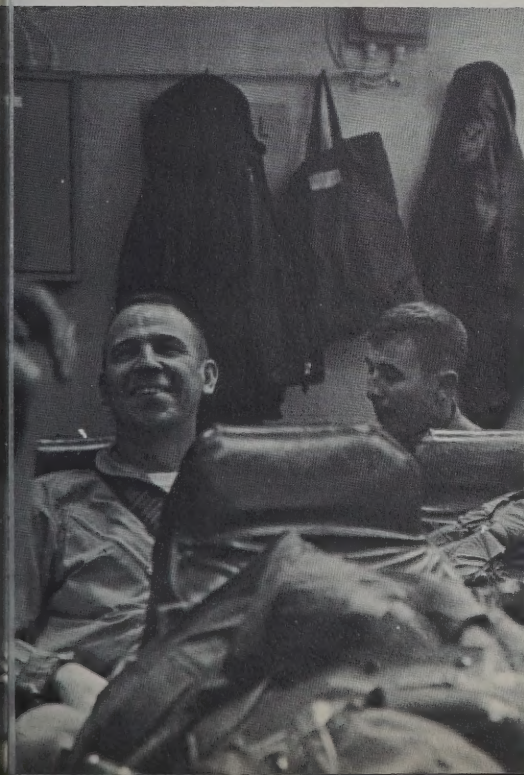

Commander Ward is a native of Rison, Arkansas. He enlisted in the Navy as an Apprentice Seaman in January 1944 and entered the Aviation Cadet Program in November 1945. He received his wings and commission in July 1947. After completion of flight training, Commander Ward served in VF-1E, Fawtulant, and VC-4 prior to being released to inactive duty in November 1949. Returning to the Navy in November 1952, he deployed in Banshees aboard USS Oriskany to the Far East as a member of a night-fighter team from VC-3. After detaching from VC-3 he was assigned to the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md. for three years. A three and one half year tour in VF-21 followed aboard USS Midway, during which time the squadron completed three West-Pac deployments. In July 1962, Commander Ward left VF-21 for a two-year assignment in the Strategic Plans Division, office of the chief of Naval operations. He reported to VF-151 as executive officer in October 1964 and became commanding officer in June 1965. From February to October 1965, Commander Ward participated in combat operations against Communist insurgency in Vietnam. He holds the air medal (7 awards), the Navy commendation medal with the combat "V" and the Navy unit commendation.

Commander Ward is a graduate of the Naval test pilot school and holds a B.S. from Louisiana State University. His aviation experience includes 5000 hours in more than 50 types of military aircraft and over 700 carrier landings of which over 200 were at night.

He is married to the former Janelle Valentine, also of Rison, Arkansas, and presently resides in San Diego with their two children, Susan and Jon.

VAW-II DET. DELTA

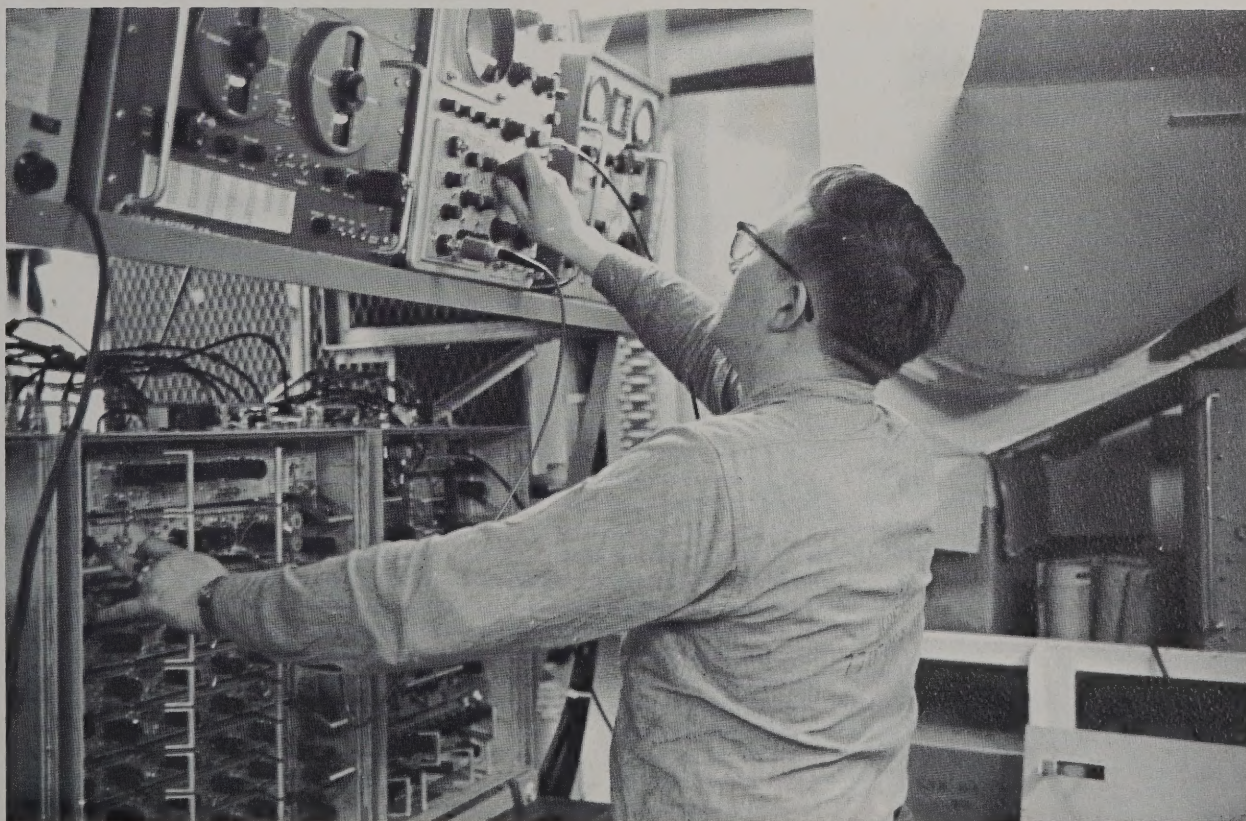

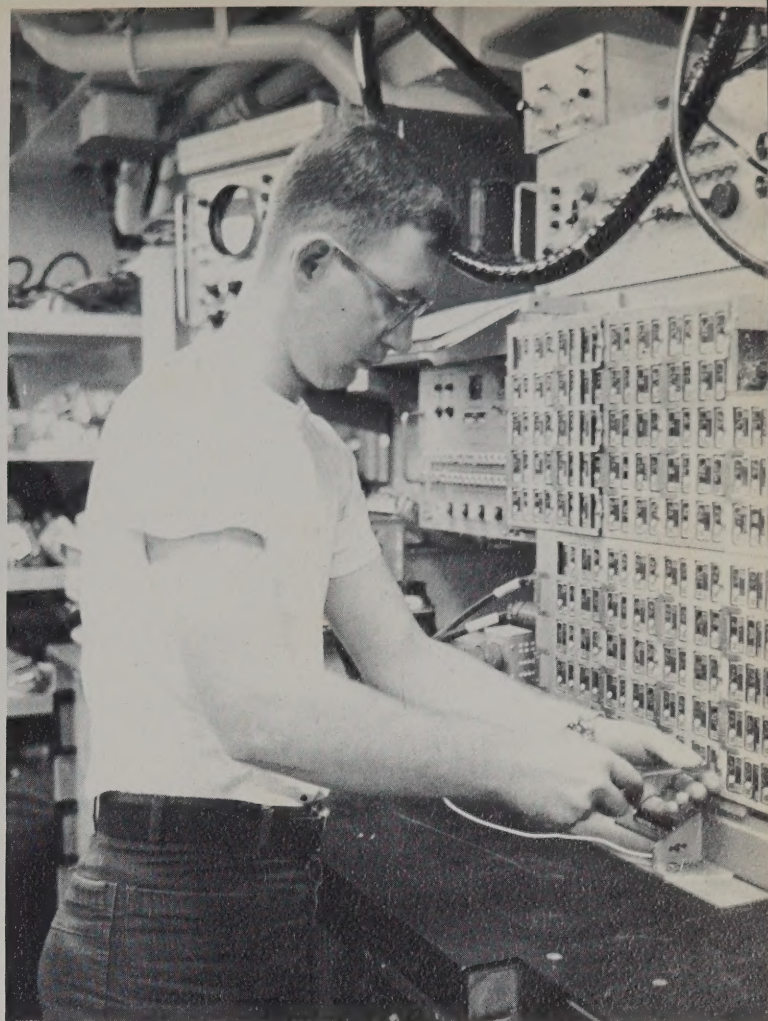

Carrier Airborne Early Warning Squadron ELEVEN Detachment DELTA was formed 1 December 1965 under the leadership of LCDR Thomas W. Conboy. Detachment DELTA is composed of 22 officers, and 104 enlisted men, and four E-2A "HAWKEYE" aircraft whose mission is that of airborne early warning and intercept control. The "HAWKEYE" greatly increases the early warning detection range of the fleet through computer detection and electronic classification of airborne and surface radar targets. The E-2A's computer data link automatically provides a real-time computer picture of the local tactical situation to naval units hundreds of miles away, freeing the aircraft crew to perform their designed mission of directing friendly aircraft against hostile targets.

CDR J. J. CHAMBERS, CO

CDR C. R. GILLESPIE, XO

The "Vigilante" Story

The squadron was first commissioned in 1948 as VF-23 flying the F-4U Corsair with which the squadron distinguished itself during two combat tours in the Korean conflict. This famous WWII workhorse was the first of six fighter aircraft which the squadron has flown in peace and combat in every corner of the Pacific.

In 1949 the squadron transitioned to the F-9F Panther jet aircraft and after one WESTPAC cruise became an all-weather jet fighter squadron whose tasks were as extensive as its title flying in the first of three famous McDonnell jets—the F-2H Banshee. In July 1956, the squadron received its first CNO Annual Safety Award for their outstanding safety record during the preceding year.

After transitioning to the F-4D Skyray, they jetted through one more cruise in Southeast Asia with Attack Carrier Air Wing FIFTEEN.

In 1959 the squadron accepted the McDonnell F-3H Demons and re-designated VF-151. The first Demon cruise in 1960 involved the squadron in one of the first flare-ups in Laos. A second CNO Annual Safety Award was won in 1964 following their last cruise in the "Demon."

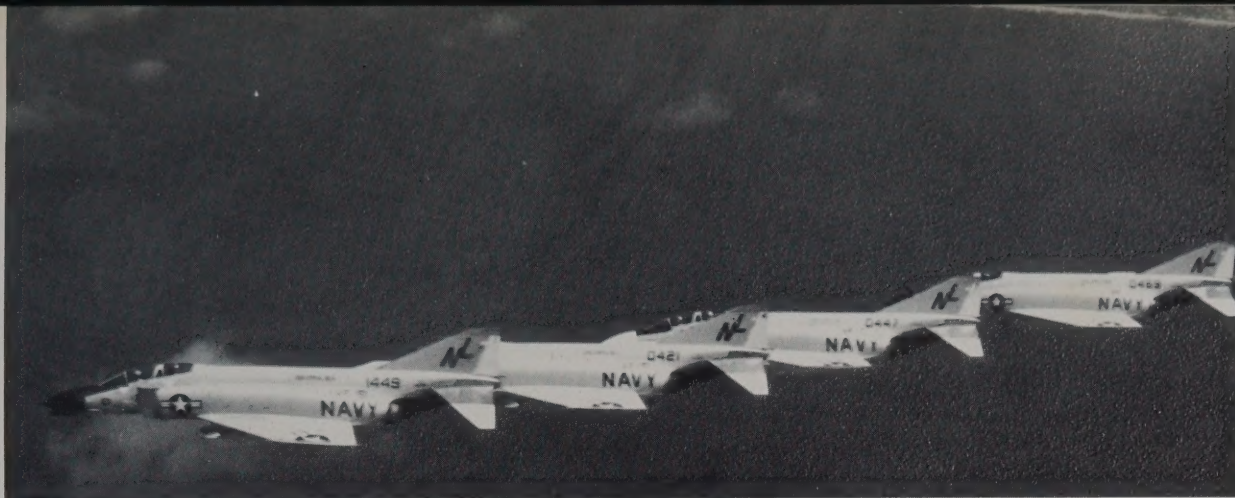

Upon completion of the 1964 cruise VF-151 transitioned to the F-4B Phantom II. The task of uniting the members of the new team of 250 enlisted men and 28 flying officers was accomplished in outstanding VIGILANTE fashion.

During their first Phantom II deployment to WESTPAC, the squadron participated in the first major strikes against North Vietnam on 7 February 1965. Many record performances were achieved during that eleven month cruise with Air Wing FIFTEEN.

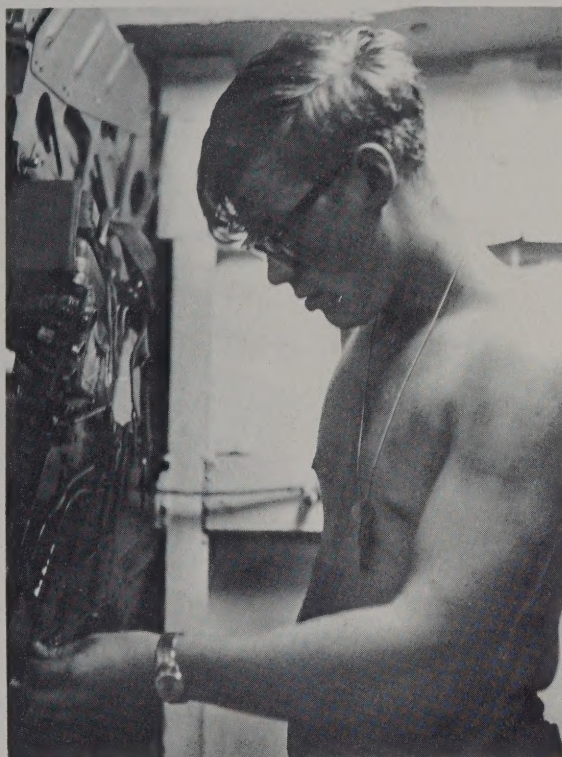

After a short six month turnaround, the VIGILANTES deployed in May 1966 in USS CONSTELLATION for their second combat cruise with the SEVENTH Fleet, and again continued to compile an impressive combat record. Since the first strikes in February, 1965, VIGILANTE aircrews have flown in more than 2200 combat missions in North and South Vietnam.

As each day passes, the squadron, presently commanded by CDR J. J. CHAMBERS, adds more distinction to an already proud record.

Fighter Squadron 161 flies the supersonic F4B Phantom II all weather interceptor. Known as the "Chargers", VF 161 is led by CDR. L. N. Hoover with CDR. R. J. Schulte as Executive Officer.

VF 161's primary mission as a fighter interceptor unit is to detect, intercept, identify and destroy enemy airborne targets which threaten the Task Force, under all weather conditions. The versatile "Chargers" also destroy enemy ground or surface targets with air-to-ground weapons, provide fighter escort for other aircraft and clear the air over targets of enemy fighters.

A Charger pilot, Lt. W. M. McGuigan and his RIO LTJG R. M. Fowler, shot down an enemy Mig-17 on July 13 which was attacking our fleet aircraft.

Upon completion of this cruise, Fighter Squadron 161 is scheduled to change over to the more sophisticated F4J Phantom.

RECONNAISSANCE ATTACK SQUADRON SIX

CDR C. R. SMITH, C.O.

CDR W. S. THOMPSON, X.O.

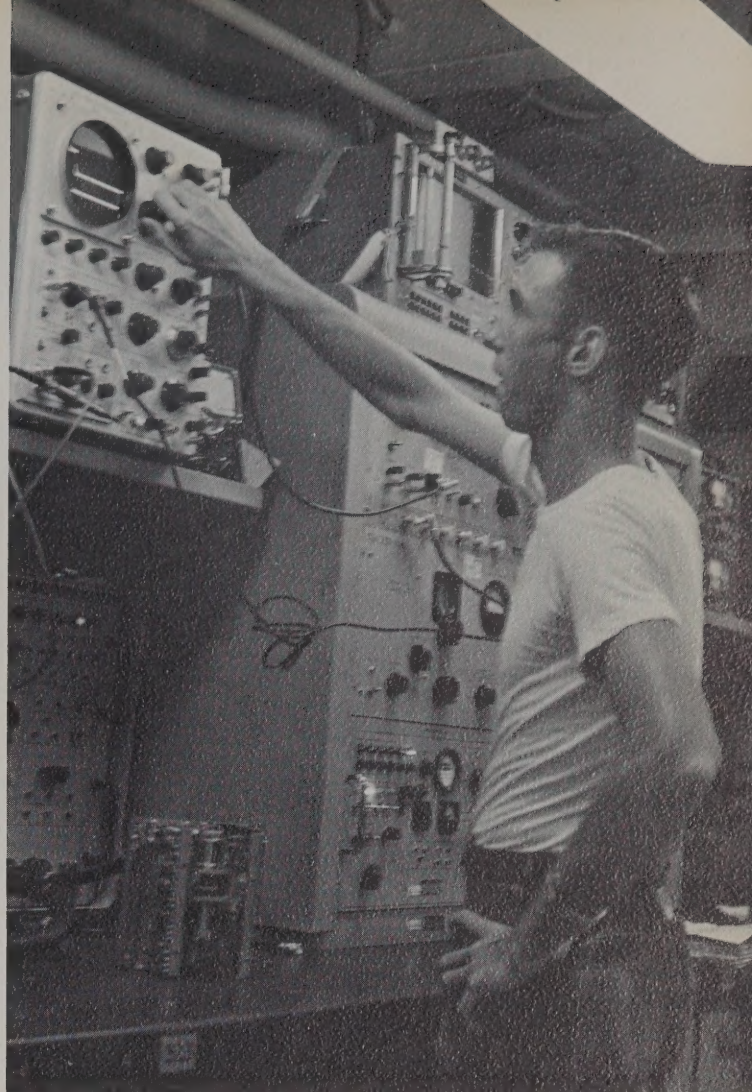

On September 23, 1965, Heavy Attack Squadron Six was redesignated Reconnaissance Attack Squadron Six thus opening a new era for one of the Navy's oldest Heavy Attack Squadrons. With a nucleus of officers and men from the former VAH squadron, the transition to a new concept of operation with a new aircraft was accomplished in record time.

The mission of RVAH-6 is to conduct all-weather, multi-sensor tactical reconnaissance flights to obtain current integrated intelligence information and secondly, if required, conduct all-weather air-to-surface attack operations with nuclear weapons to demolish enemy installations. RVAH-6, embarked aboard USS CONSTELLATION, directly supports tactical units of Task Force Seventy-Seven and various national intelligence agencies by providing pre-strike intelligence, bomb damage assessment and surveillance photography.

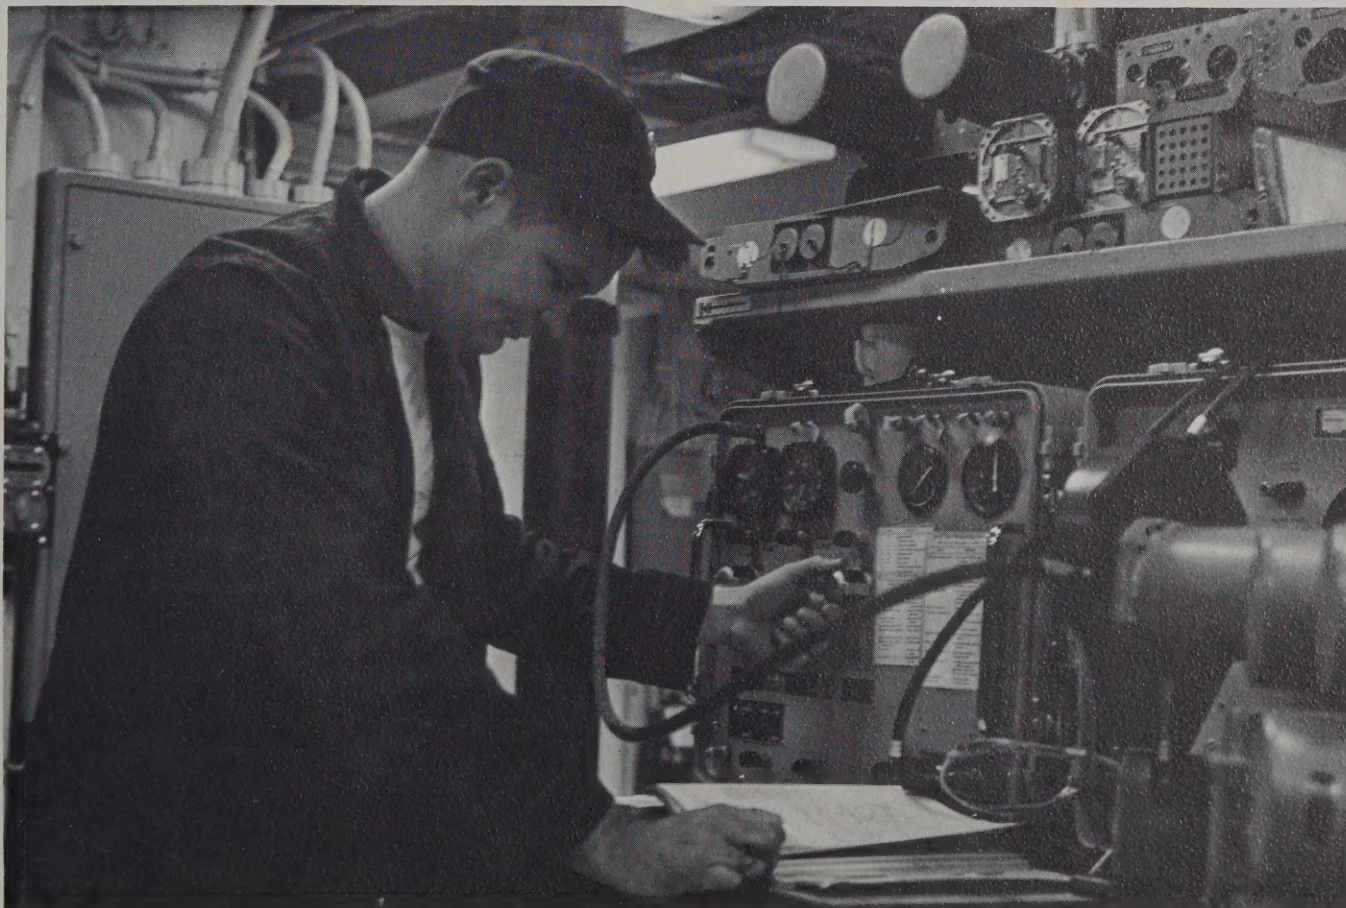

RVAH-6 flies the mach two RA5C "Vigilante" aircraft. It is a two place, two engine reconnaissance attack aircraft capable of all weather, high or low altitude tactical reconnaissance and the delivery of special and conventional weapons. The aircraft and its systems together with the ship or ground-based Integrated Operational Intelligence Center (IOIC) comprise the U.S. Navy Integrated Operational Intelligence System (IOIS). This system is designed to provide tactical commanders with the full and up to date intelligence picture on any target area. This information includes photographic coverage, side looking radar coverage and Electronic Order of Battle (EOB) data.

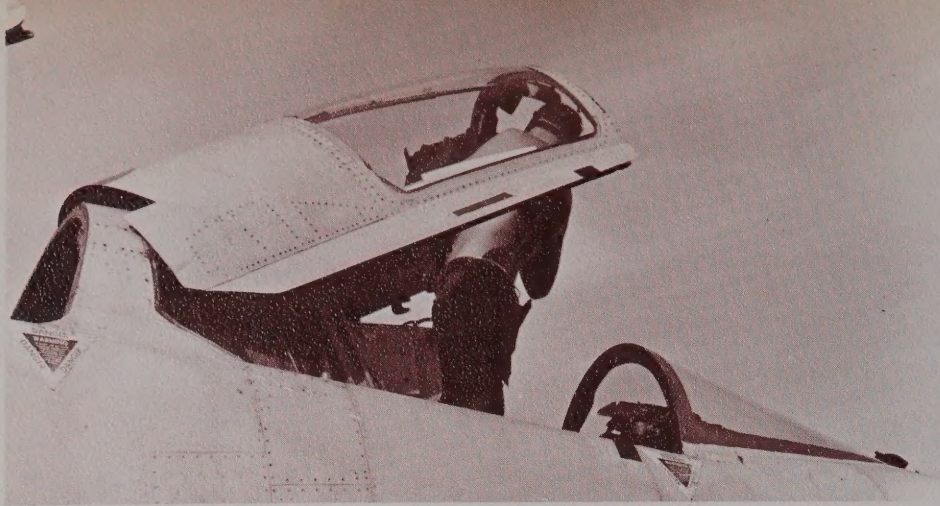

RVAH-6, under its Commanding Officer, Cdr Charles Smith, Jr., is fulfilling its mission in a manner that is in keeping with the squadron motto: "Celeritas Cum Accurate" ("Speed With Accuracy").

Flying the 4AC Skyhawk, the "Blue Tail Flies" of Attack Squadron 153 have again proven the versatility of the "bantam bomber." CDR. E. W. INGLEY, C.O.

The "Silver Foxes" of Attack Squadron 155, led by their Skipper, CDR E. W. "Bud" Ingley, proved a real thorn in the sides of the North Vietnamese transportation systems. Time and again they unloaded their bombs and rockets on vital bridges, barges trucks and POL (petroleum - oil - lubricant) storage. Flying the versatile A4E Skyhawk jet attack bomber, the "Foxes" participated in such strikes as the bombing of the oil storage areas near Haiphong (Do Son), the second big raid at Haiphong itself, joined to help sink several North Vietnamese PT boats, and were instrumental in completely destroying two freight trains—totaling some 80 cars—carry military supplies.

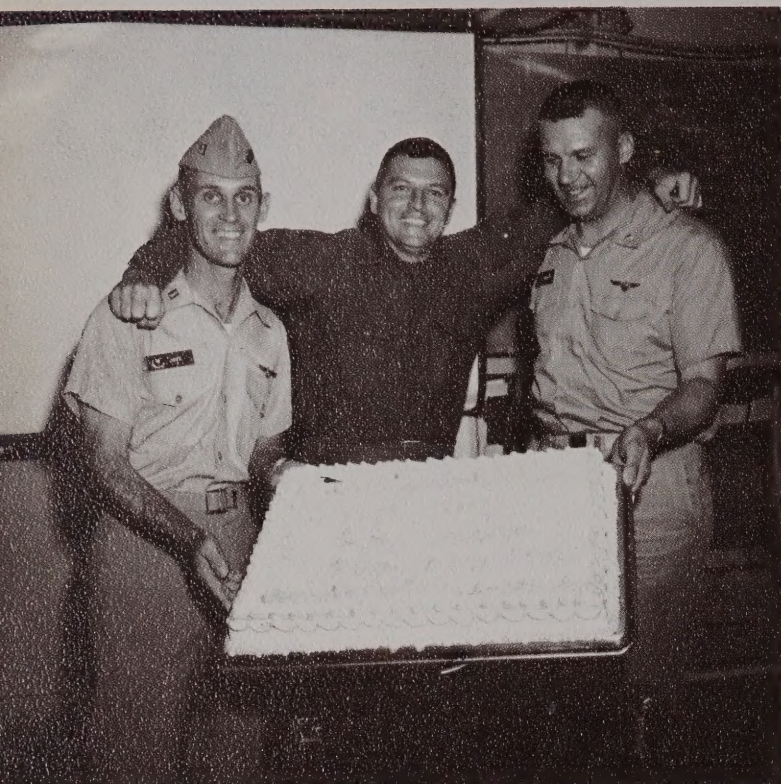

The squadron's combined "can do" spirit and "let's improve it" attitude has gained for it a reputation second to none.

The "Tigers" Tale

Attack Squadron SIXTY FIVE flies the Navy's newest operational weapons system, the Grumman A6A "Intruder." Manned by a crew of two, the pilot and the bombardier/navigator, the "Intruder" is designed to seek out and destroy targets under all weather conditions both day and night. Capable of carrying ordnance loads in excess of seven tons, the A6A is known for its diversified strike capabilities.

The "Tigers" became the third operational A6 squadron when they transitioned to the new twin-jet attack plane in January 1965. The task of unifying some 300 men and 35 officers into the solid fighting unit that it is today was accomplished during the six month period ending in June 1965. The following seven months found the "Intruder" flight crews flying simulated missions across the United States in preparation for its present combat tour. The squadron, home based at NAS Oceana, Virginia, moved to the West Coast in February 1966 to join Air Wing FIFTEEN aboard the USS CONSTELLATION. After a six week "shakedown" cruise, the Intruder squadron crossed the Pacific with the Air Wing and began combat operations in the Southeast Asia area in mid-June. After endearing themselves to the Forward Air Controllers in South Vietnam with their large quantities of ordnance and excellence in visual delivery, the "Tigers" moved north with "Connie" to commence operations in North Vietnam against selected military complexes. Hitting varied targets day and night, and carrying over 100,000 pounds of ordnance per day, the squadron immediately made its presence felt.

The Commanding Officer, Commander ROBERT C. MANDEVILLE of Charleston, West Virginia, the first thousand hour A-6 pilot, and Executive Officer, Commander FRANK CRAMBLET of Gooding, Idaho provide the leadership necessary to ensure the squadron's continued success.

HEAVY ATTACK SQUADRON EIGHT

CDR. R. E. NEIGER, C.O.

Heavy Attack Squadron EIGHT, fourth squadron to be commissioned into the A-3 community, was born late in the spring of 1957. Only twelve months elapsed before HATRON EIGHT was ordered aboard USS MIDWAY (CVA 41) for its first operational deployment.

Since being commissioned, Heavy Attack Squadron EIGHT has made seven WESTPAC cruises aboard USS MIDWAY. Now in her eighth cruise, the squadron is operating for the first time with CVW 15 and CONSTELLATION.

VAH 8 has received numerous accolades during her lifetime, including aviation safety awards in 1958, 1960 and 1964. Perhaps the most significant award is the Battle Efficiency "E" which was won during a previous WESTPAC deployment.

CDR R. E. NEIGER, the present skipper of the Heavy EIGHT "Fireballers", has flown Skywarriors since 1959 and the Skyraider before that. He served with the squadron in 1960, became Executive Officer and later Commanding Officer in 1965.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Although most of the cruise was characterized by long hours, longer days, hot weather and working conditions, we did find time to relax occasionally—over a letter from home, a cup of coffee, a movie or TV, listening to a new record on the ship's radio station—and once in a while a "rest stop" in Subic, Hong Kong or Yokosuka.

The following pages might be termed the cruisebook's "R and R" section.

CONNIE'S CREW

Lost in the middle of nowhere,
The Gulf of Tonkin is the spot.
We are doomed to spend our time,
in a land that God forgot.

We sweat, we toil, we slave,
It's more than a man can stand.
We're not a bunch of convicts.
We're defenders of our land.

We're members of the Navy,
Earning our daily pay.
Guarding the people with millions,
For six-and-a-half a day.

Lonely with our memories,
Anxious to see our gals.
Hoping that while we're out here,
They don't marry our 4-F pals.

Few people know that we're living,
And nobody gives a damn.
Although we are all forgotten,
We belong to Uncle Sam.

But when we get to heaven,
Saint Peter will surely yell,
"Let in the boys from the Connie,
They served their time in hell."

THE BRONZE STATUE OF AMITA-BUDDHA, DAIBUTSU OR GREAT BUDDHA WAS CAST IN 1252 A.D. BY THE SCULPTORS, ÔNO-GORÔEMON AND TANJI-HISATOMO AT THE REQUEST OF MISS IDANONOTSUBONE AND PRIEST JÔKÔ WHO NOT ONLY ORIGINATED TO BUILD THE BIG STATUE AND TEMPLE COVERED IT BUT ALSO COLLECTED DONATIONS FROM PEOPLE FOR IT.

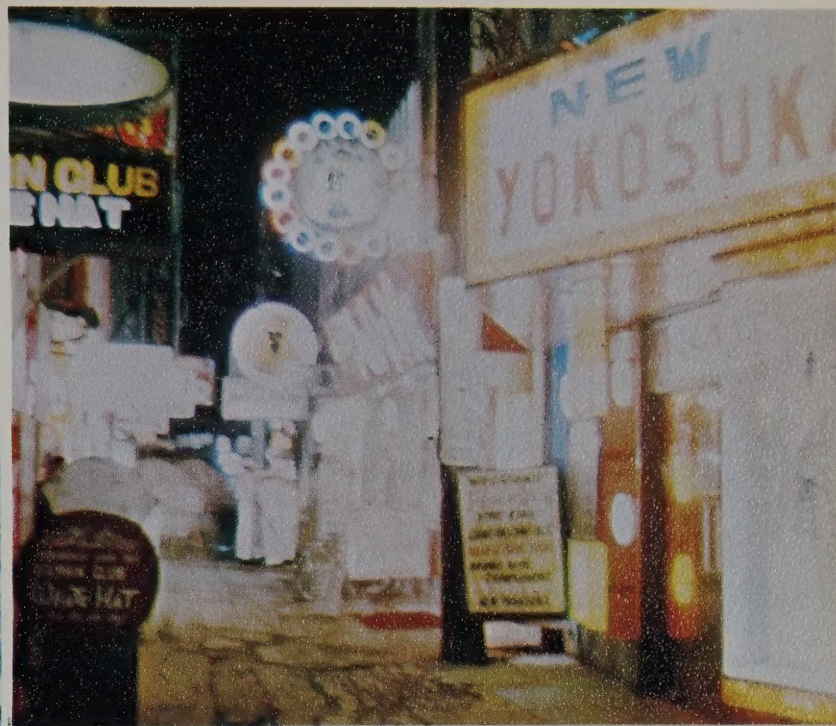

IN THE YEAR OF 1495 A TIDAL WAVE SWEEPED AWAY THE GREAT TEMPLE OF THE BUDDHA LEAVING ONLY ITS FOUNDATION STONES BUT DID NOT INJURE THE BUDDHA'S BODY.

THE BIG EARTHQUAKE IN SEPT. 1923 DID NOT HARM THE BODY BUT DESTROYED ITS BASE AND IT WAS REPAIRED IN 1926.

THE LATEST REPAIR WAS DONE IN 1960-61. THIS REPAIR (1) STRENGTHENED A POWER OF THE BUDDHA'S NECK WHICH SUPPORTS THE BIG HEAD AND (2) MADE IT POSSIBLE FOR THE BUDDHA'S BODY TO MOVE FREELY ON THE BASE AVOIDING A BIG SHOCK OF EARTHQUAKE.

Tokyo — a big, busy and fascinating city, but not, perhaps, what most expected of Japan. Rather than Kimono clad residents, Tokyo residents dress almost exclusively in western clothing and rather than Japanese style structures, there were towering buildings. Rather than rickshaws, there were speeding, darting, ducking and diving autos.

Some took a Special Services sponsored tour visiting the National Gymnasium, site of the 1964 Olympics, Tokyo Tower and Meji Art Museum. They saw a show and ate a Japanese style dinner. Other Connie men struck out on their own for the Ginza, Imperial Palace or a Tokyo night Club.

Courage, valor, energy, decisions and dedication; these are characteristics of men. And this is a story of men—men who make 85,000 tons of lifeless steel a vital, operational combat machine.

We hope this book will be enjoyed and will instill pride in this complex, teeming, floating city. We hope also that it will enable each man aboard to learn a little more about his ship and his shipmates. Lastly we hope it will record our mission in Vietnam.

We would like to acknowledge the fine work of the entire photo lab. These men spent many hours shooting, proofing, processing and printing the hundreds of photos necessary for this book. A special "well done" is in order for PHC "Wally" Reid who was "our cruisebook man in the Photo Lab."

And thanks to the men of Constellation and Air Wing 15 who gave us the best subject material in WestPac.

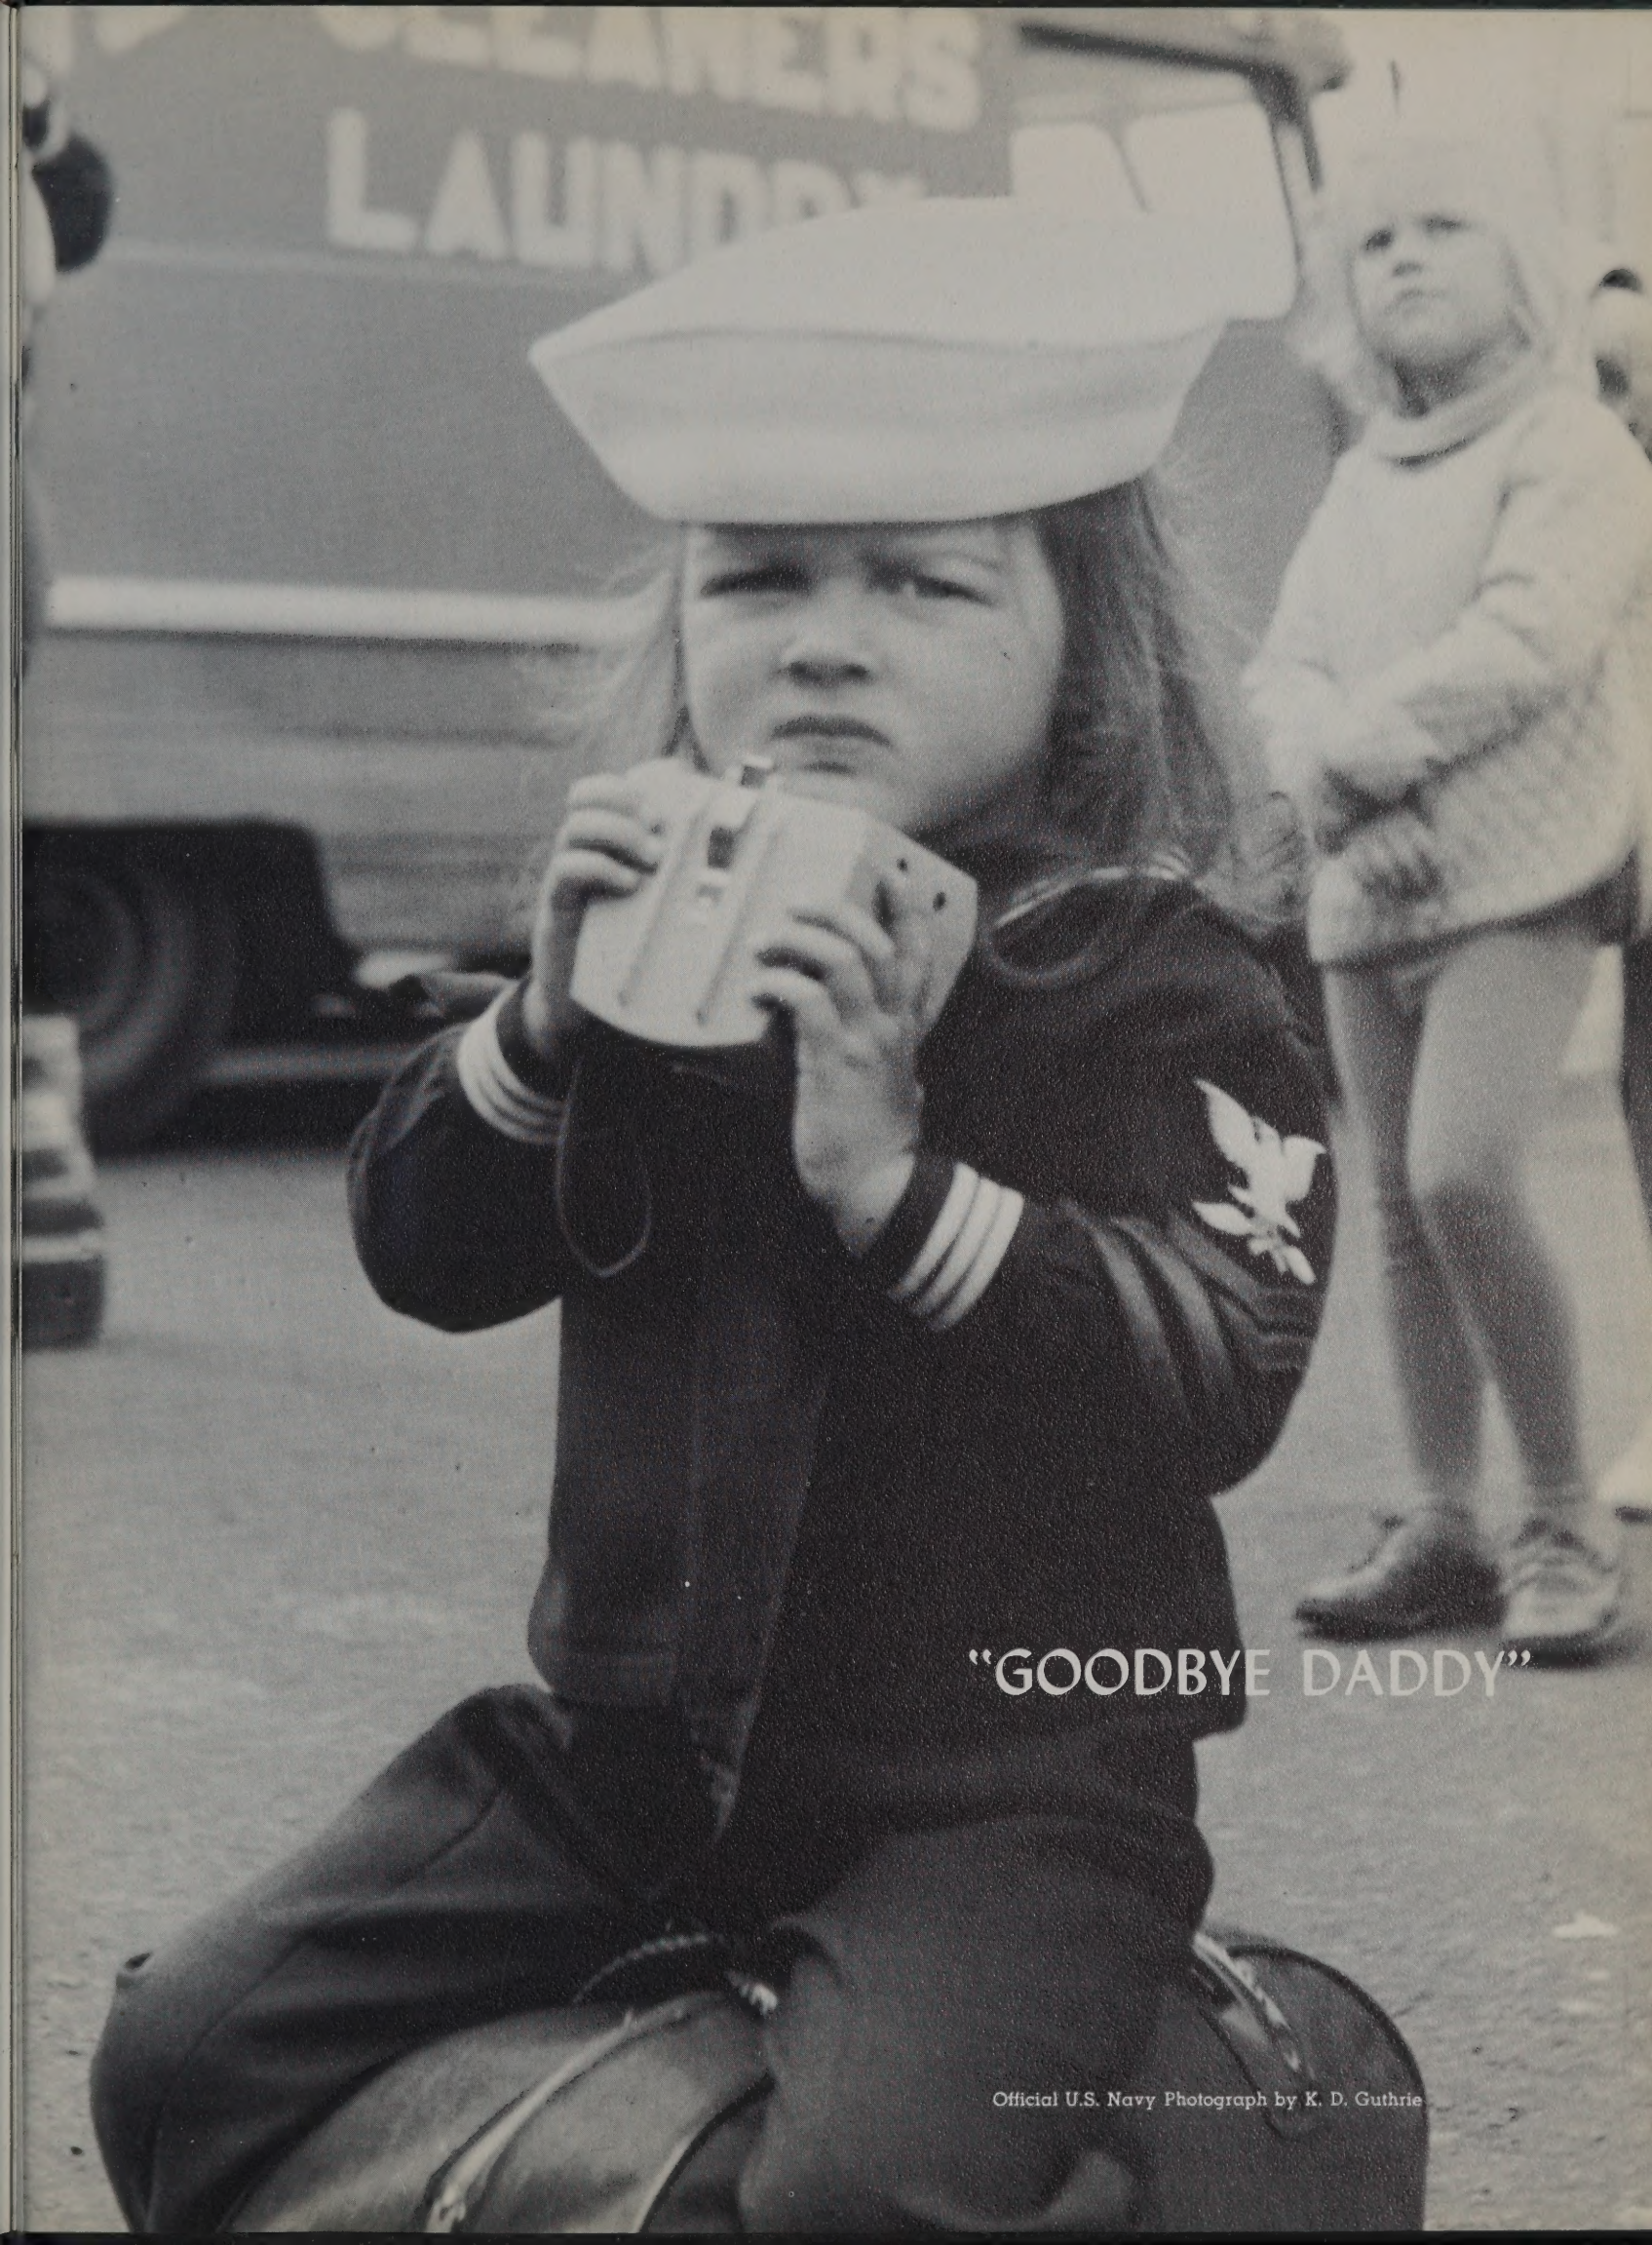

It's your book, we hope you like it.
